H. G. Wells Sees Monarchy's Doom

Novelist Says Edward's Abdication "Disillusioned" British Public

Herbert George Wells, famed British author and journalist, today said the Duke and Duchess of Windsor situation and "domestic trouble" in the royal family of Great Britain had "disillusioned" the public on monarchies.

"The monarchy, anyway, is an out-of-date institution," he said. "The monarchy in England is like the lord mayor's show in London. It supplies a spectacle that goes in the way of traffic.

"It does not have the importance in the English mind that the people in America think it has.

"The Star-Spangled Banner is closer to the hearts of America than the crown is to the British people."

DOUBTS EDWARD COMEBACK

He stated that he did not believe Edward would ever return to England in a position of political or royal importance because, "when the king abdicates, he goes out."

England has no real Fascist movement, he said, only Sir Oswald Moseley "a baronet running around the country spending a certain amount of money inciting people to imitate the Italian Black Shirts or the Nazi Swastika." He added:

"Fascism has made no headway in the thoughts of the British working man. Just a few people on the East Side have lost their heads about it and given it

City Vs. Curley Suit Up Friday

Suit brought by the city of Boston against former Governor Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso for an accounting of $50,000 was scheduled today to be heard on Friday in Suffolk Superior Civil Court.

The sum which the city seeks an accounting of is part of a payment of $85,000 made by the city in settlement of a suit for damages arising during construction of the Kenmore square subway extension.

Decision to hear the case Friday was reached after a conference of Henry E. Foley, corporation counsel of Boston; Santosuosso, Frank Simpson, counsel for Santosuosso, and Judge A. E. Pinanski, who will hear the case.

Curley was not present or represented at the conference, as he is enroute to the British West Indies. His presence, however, will not be required when the suit comes up on Friday.

Harvard Man Human Radio

Fills His Ears With Salt Water, Hears Tunes

Well, you can try this trick or not, as you wish, but S. Smith Stevens, young instructor in psychology at Harvard, says he receives radio programs by filling his right ear with salt water and strapping a couple of pieces of wire to himself.

Instructor Stevens is specializing in the sensitivity of the human ear and its powers of generating electrical current.

According to the Harvard Crimson, after experimenting with guinea pigs, Instructor Stevens, a graduate in 1932, thought he'd try a trick or two on himself.

So he filled his right ear with salt water, inserted a wire held in place by a strip of rubber around his head, and then strapped another wire to his wrist.

With this contraption, Stevens can hear radio programs, he claims. The announcements are sometimes blurred, but the tunes played are recognizable.

President Calls Economists

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt called Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, and key economists from three federal agencies to the White House today to get their views on general economic conditions and their relation to the budget and relief.

The economists called were Leon Henderson, Works Progress Administration; Isador Lubin, Labor Department Bureau of Labor Statistics, and Lauchlin Currie, Federal Reserve Board.

Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, said the conference would be a continuation of a meeting at Hyde Park, N. Y., between the President and Hopkins.

He added that the President from now on would be giving prime attention to the business and financial situation ad its affect on employment, the budget and relief.

Market Rallies After $3 Dip

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (INS)—The stock market recovered impressively today, after dropping $1 to more than $3 in the first few minutes of trading.

Most losses were regained and a substantial number of pivotal issues moved above Saturday's closing levels. The volume of selling at the start, carried over from last week, sent the ticker two minutes behind, but trading dried up as the list rallied.

The dollar showed further weakness in foreign exchange dealings, with the British pound reaching a new high for the year at $5.03.

Soviet Inventor Believed Executed

BERLIN, Nov. 8 (INS)—Anatole Nicholas Tupoleff, noted Soviet inventor and constructor of the giant "A. N. T." planes which are the pride of the Russian air fleet, has been arrested and is believed to have been executed, according to reliable information received here today.

Fight Reds, Doherty Warns

By JAMES F. McENANEY

American school-children were warned today that they must be prepared to take the offensive in the battle that is being waged by certain organizations and individuals to adulterate the minds of the nation's youths with subversive propaganda.

The warning was sounded by Daniel J. Doherty, newly-elected National Commander of the American Legion, as he spoke to students of Melrose high school in the school's auditorium.

Since being elevated to head of the Legion, it was the first time that Commander Doherty spoke outrightly to "the school children of America."

"It is youngsters of your type that we of the American Legion and citizenry of America must look forward to for assistance in our battle to retain and uphold this great government of ours."

CONTINUE FIGHT

"One of the important resolutions that were adopted by our New York convention was to continue our fight and assist other patriotic organizations against the destruction of our government through the distribution of subversive propaganda.

"These Communistic organizations are attempting to sell their wares through the school children. We must be ready to curb and wipe out such moves.

"It is hard to visualize or explain to the younger generation of

3 Kings Worry George's Chef

Rulers of Greece and Bulgaria Guests

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—It was a hectic Monday for the chefs at Buckingham Palace today.

They had to prepare dinner for three kings—King George of Great Britain, King George of Greece and King Boris of Bulgaria.

The King of Greece has been a guest at the palace since he arrived in London last week. King Boris has been here since October 31, but tonight's visit will be his first call on the British royal family.

Widow, 73, Weds Man Half as Old

Groom in Marshfield Romance Is Musician

The marriage of a 73-year-old Marshfield widow to a South Weymouth man less than half her age was revealed today when return of the marriage license was made to the Marshfield town clerk.

According to the return, Mrs. Grace E. Emerry Blanchard of Nantasket street, Marshfield, was married on October 24 to Earl E. Dunbar of Pond street, South Weymouth, who gave his occupation as a musician and his age as 36.

The couple, it was revealed, were married at her home by the Rev. Ernest A. Thomas of Marshfield, retired Congregational minister.

October Job Fall Reported

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor reported today that employment among its members dropped last month—the first October drop since 1931.

"Our weighted figures for unemployment of union members, which had showed no gain whatever in employment since July, now show an actual decline," the report said.

"The figure showing 9.3 per cent of the membership unemployed through the summer months rose to 9.4 per cent unemployed in October.

"While this seems a small change, actually the figures are a very important barometer. October is normally the peak month of the fall busy season, and employment has always increased from August to October, except during the severe business declines of the depression."

Boy, 5, Run Over by Train, Only Bruised

WATERVLIET, N. Y., Nov. 8 (INS)—A few minor bruises were exhibited today by Billy Hines, 5, as the only injuries he suffered when a freight train passed over him. The child, chased by playmates, stumbled on the tracks as the train approached. Stunned, he lay perfectly still while the engine and cars rumbled over his head.

CHINA SPURNS HITLER'S SECRET OFFERS TO END JAP WAR

NANKING, Nov. 8 (INS)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, China's "man of destiny," today had placed his invaded nation's reliance for a "just peace" squarely on the lap of the Brussels nine-power treaty conference.

In an interview given at his bomb-proof headquarters as the Chinese-Japanese war entered its fifth month, the premier insisted China will refuse to negotiate for an armistice directly with Japan.

Moreover, the Chinese dictator said, there were no mediation efforts in progress outside of Brussels, thus denying reports that China would accept Chancellor Hitler's secret offer to bring the warring Oriental powers together.

SEES ULTIMATE VICTORY

The Generalissimo cautioned against attaching too much importance to Japanese military gains, declaring:

"I am convinced that the ultimate victory belongs to China."

That China looks hopefully to the Brussels conference, was apparent from Chiang's assertion:

"I am firmly convinced that the forces of righteousness and justice, once set into motion, will accomplish worthy results."

The Generalissimo was asked what China would do if the Brussels conference were to propose direct peace negotiations between Nanking and Tokyo. He replied:

"Such a proposal would serve no other purpose than to increase China's difficulty.

UNACCEPTABLE TERMS

"It would merely afford Japan an opportunity to press upon us terms that would be unacceptable both to China and the nine-power treaty signatories.

"Furthermore, Japan has proved herself to be a nation in the habit of dishonoring pledges. Such terms as she would advance would therefore, constitute neither an asset to Far Eastern stability nor a worthy safeguard to China's integrity and independence."

Jury Is Told Of Simpson 'Struggle'

Edward P. Simpson, ex-convict now on trial accused of the murders of two Newton policemen, admitted having had "a struggle" with Policeman Henry G. Bell, Medical Examiner Thomas Morton Gallagher testified in Middlesex Superior Court today.

"Did you ask Simpson if there had been a struggle?" Simpson's attorney, John M. Boyle, asked in cross-examination.

"Yes," Dr. Gallagher replied. He said there had."

"Didn't you tell him that you thought there had, because of the nature of Bell's wound?" Boyle pressed him.

"I told him nothing," was Dr. Gallagher's answer.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA

Indications were the defense would seek to capitalize heavily on Dr. Gallagher's testimony.

Earlier it had been indicated the defense would endeavor to show that Policeman Bell shot Simpson first while a prisoner in Simpson's car, and that it was not until then that Simpson shot Bell in "self-defense."

The state asserts Simpson shot Bell in cold blood as Bell sat unarmed beside him in the car, and that he then turned and shot Motorcycle Policeman Lawrence E. Murphy, who was approaching likewise without a gun in his hand.

Captain Richard Goode of Newton police, who was last on the stand Saturday, returned for cross-examination today, and it was in this cross-examination that something of the defense's plan was revealed.

WANTS SEAT COVERS

Attorney Boyle particularly wanted to know what had become of blood-soaked seat covers that were

Son of B. U. Dean Killed in Plane

Lieutenant John G. Marshall, 35, only son of Dean John P. Marshall of the Boston University school of music, was killed near Fellsmere, Fla., today when the navy amphibian plane he was flying crashed in a marsh, acording to despatches.

Also killed in the crash was Lieutenant Commander E. G. Hill, 57, retired, of Miami Beach, Fla.

Marshall, executive officer at the Opa-Locka base, was on a routine flight to Jacksonville.

He was formerly a resident of Newton and began flying at the Squantum naval air base ten years eyars ago. In 1929 he was transferred to Florida after serving as instructor for a time at Squantum.

He is survived by his widow and two children, Barbara, 10, and John, eight.

Lieutenant Marshall attended Bowdoin College for two years before entering the naval reserv.

Black Renders First Ruling

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (INS)—Justice Hugo L. Black read his first formal opinion in the Supreme Court today—a ruling in favor of the Federal Trade Commission.

The opinion sustained an order of the trade commission to the Standard Education Society of Chicago and individual officers, branding as unfair competition its sales methods and issuing a cease and desist order.

The commission order prohibited representation to customers that books will be given free of cost.

In low, even tones, Black read only a brief summary of his six-page opinion.

Heiress in Movies To Recoup Riches

GERALDINE SPRECKELS

She's Gone Hollywood

$500,000 Spreckels Wealth Gone, Girl Works in Films

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8 (AP)—Geraldine Spreckels, her $500,000 sugar fortune virtually gone, turned to the movies today to recoup. She'll use a screen name because "I want to do this entirely on my own."

"There still is an income from the estate, but it's mostly gone," she said. "It just slipped through my fingers like quicksilver. A lot of it went to relatives—

"But of course some of it went for clothes and cars."

The 21-year-old blonde inherited her money from her grandfather, John D. Spreckels, when she was 18. As "Anna Johns" she has a contract with Warner Brothers and a part in Bette Davis' next picture, "Jezebel."

Her divorce suit against Adolph B. Spreckels, her second cousin, is pending.

"After that divorce is over with I am going to pay my debts and settle down to a movie career," she said.

Fireman's Son, 17, Shoots Himself

Arthur J. Landry, Jr., 17-year-old son of a Boston fireman, shot himself in the groin early today at his home on Bayswater street in East Boston.

Police said young Landry told them he was examining the pistol for the first time since he bought it more than a month ago. He said he didn't know the gun was loaded. His name is on the danger list at City Hospital.

Hoover in Maine For Colby Address

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 8 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover arrived in Maine today to speak at Colby College's special convocation in honor of Elijah Parish Lovejoy, Maine native, killed 100 years ago at Alton, Ill., in defense of a free press. Hoover was welcomed here by Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., of Maine.

Police Link Woman To Theft

A band of cracksmen, one of whom, authorities believe, was a smartly clad woman, and another dressed as a clergyman, broke open the safe in the Parke-Snow Company department store, South street, Roslindale, over the week-end and escaped with $2432.83, it was reported to police today.

Police said the safe crackers apparently had hidden in the store Saturday night until it was closed.

Shortly after the report was made, police of the West Roxbury station said they were seeking for questioning a man dressed as a clergyman and a 32-year-old woman who were seen riding in a car bearing New Jersey registration plates.

Also sought for questioning in connection with this break, police said, were three other men riding in a car with Georgia plates.

All five, police stated, have been in Greater Boston during the past week and were reported as walking through various stores suspiciously without making any purchases.

Police said the man wearing a clergyman's collar was about 38 years old, with mixed grey hair and wore a grey hat, overcoat and dark suit.

His woman companion, they said, wore a green dress and coat.

Burglar tools were found on the floor near the safe. Earlier Saturday night, store officials told police, $825 had been paid out in salaries.

Troopers Hold Man With Grudge, Gun

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 8 (AP)—A man who applied to state police for transportation to the nearby town of Washington was detained today after troopers said they discovered he was carrying a dismantled shotgun and a box of shells, and was voicing a grievance against a Washington resident.

The police said investigation sowed the man had twice been a patient at the Northampton State Hospital. They said he would be returned there.

Farm Bill Urged By Sec'y Wallace

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 8 (INS)—Congress should enact a strong, self-financing "ever-normal granary" measure to aid farmers, business men, laborers and the consuming public, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace declared at a meeting of representatives from 13 midwest corn belt states here today.

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS:

AFL-CIO Blasts At Duke Needless

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Haven't the A. F. of L. and the CIO got too much of a job on their hands kicking each other around to afford the time to be jumping up and down on the poor prostrate form of the piteous ex-King-Emperor of England, Scotland and other assorted Empires and Dominions?

HUGH S. JOHNSON

They've got a right to be sore at M. Bedaux if it is true that he had anything to do with installing the abominable stretch-out system which so speeds all mass-production operations that few but the athletic can work at them, and they only in their prime—and then the scrap heap. But what has that to do with Dave Windsor?

Probably The Man Who Would Not Be King isn't very experienced in doping out itineraries. Up to recently he had an exclusive Cook's Tour Bureau of his very own to do that for him with branch houses in every country, port and town in the world.

But now with nobody but Wally to study the railroad time-tables, hotel guides and steamship folders, he must have been glad when an apparently informed super-dragoman stepped forward and offered to do the whole job.

He probably didn't stop to realize that he was putting himself into the hands of a prize spotlight Barnum who would surely exhibit him like a three-headed calf or the Cardiff giant.

* * *

He never before had to stop to think what kind of political or publicity effect was going to be produced every time he stopped to blow his nose and count his money. That kind of thinking was all done for him by another Imperial propaganda department.

Wally couldn't be depended on to pinch-hit as a public relations expert either. On her previous tries, her kind of publicity policy had threatened to wreck the British Empire and actually did do for the Duke.

So David was on his own, floundering around in an attempt to plan a hop-skip-and-jump American tour by train, plane and auto, and no better equipped than an Esquimau to do the job.

* * *

Then because Bedaux horned in as an advance agent and because the Duke first went to Germany and saw Hitler, the pinkish leaders of the Maritime Union object. These are the gents who have already made Americans uneasy about travelling on American ships. Their tactics threaten to stop the government's policy of rebuilding our Merchant Marine.

They take it upon themselves to harass and interfere with these two pitiable exiles on the ground that they threaten Fascism in the United States! It is a silly and absurd outrage on the hospitality of the United States by men who are rapidly raising the question in many minds whether they, themselves, deserve that hospitality.

* * *

On the Air

(Radio comment by General Hugh S. Johnson is broadcast every Monday night at 8 o'clock, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 10 o'clock, and on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, through station WBZ-WBZA.)

The stretch-out system is one abomination, and Hitler is another. But to hook up this baffled and ruined royal incompetent with either, for the reasons here advanced, is hypocrisy enough to give the heaves to a hyena—and that is almost impossible.

If going to Russia, Germany or Italy and asking the boss-man just what he thinks he is trying to celebrate makes a man a Communist, a Nazi or a Fascist, then a good many of our economic royalists, journalists, diplomatists—not to mention "liberals"—are wolves in sheep's clothing.

Some of the published tripe of the self-styled "liberals" on this subject shows just how liberal they are—which is a little less liberal than the rack-tenders of Torquemada's Inquisition, or the Sanhedrin that tried the Master.

Windsor to View Slums, Housing In France

U. S. Visit Looms Now For February; Green Bid Cheers Duke

PARIS, Nov. 8 (INS)—Undaunted by their American rebuff, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor have determined to resume their study of housing conditions at once—and in leftist France.

As one of the Duke's first moves, it was learned today, he will see Leon Jouhaux, head of the French Federation of Labor, who occupies a more powerful position in this country than do either William Green or John L. Lewis in the United States.

PLAN SLUMMING TOUR

Arranging to remain in Paris for another week, at least, the former English King will visit the slums of Paris as well as many factories and industrial settlements in the vicinity it was understood.

The British embassy and French government have both promised to aid in planning the Duke's industrial tour. His equerry, Major Dudley Forwood, is arranging details.

To all inquiries at the Duke's hotel, the same answer was given, significant of his desire to escape from the public eye:

"The Duke is a private citizen."

U. S. VISIT IN FEBRUARY

But it was learned that the Duke was greatly heartened by the "invitation" extended by the president of the American Federation of Labor to visit America. He plans to live during the next few weeks as quietly as possible, but it seemed certain that new plans for a visit to the United States would be worked out early in the new year, with the visit probably taking place in February.

The Duke and Duchess will remain in Paris until at least after Armistice Day.

Then they will later seek the sunshine which they had hoped to find in Hawaii, probably in Morocco or Algeria. This eliminates any prospect of their going to Russia, as formerly rumored.

King George Queries Edward on Plans

LONDON, Nov. 8 (Monday) (INS)—The London Daily Express reported today that King George VI telephoned his brother, the Duke of Windsor, at Paris yesterday and inquired about his future plans, now that the trip to America has been postponed.

The Duke was unable to give His Majesty a definite reply, the newspaper said, because it will be at least a week before he and his Duchess decide on their next step.

King George and his brother, according to the newspaper, discussed over the telephone the possibility of the Duke and Duchess visiting England, some time in the future.

Windsor's Host Quits Efficiency Company

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—For an undivulged reason, Charles E. Bedaux, erstwhile host and guide to the Duke of Windsor, today resigned from the board of directors of the British Industrial Efficiency Corporation, Bedaux, Ltd.

Officials of the company said his act would not affect the active management of the organization.

Bedaux, designer of what American labor leaders term an industrial "speed-up" system, was under fire in America by labor groups, and the attacks resulting from his association with the Duke were among the reasons for Edward's cancelling his American trip.

Roosevelt Replies to Duke's "Regrets"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt has acknowledged the Duke of Windsor's message from Paris expressing regret over the postponement of his trip to the United States.

White House officials declined to make public the President's answer.

Bitten During Arrest, Dies

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (INS)—Death of Detective Arthur J. Demarrais, 41, was ascribed today to severe wounds he received when bitten by a crazed Negro who resisted arrest.

The Negro, shot twice by the detective after the attack, was in a critical condition. He was charged with homicide.

Demarrais arrested Brown after a Negress complained the Negro threatened to kill her unless she married him.

Before being shot, the Negro bit the Detective's face and arms and almost severed the middle finger of his left hand.

Gossip Slaying Appeal Planned

COUSHATTA, La., Nov. 8 (INS)—The "gossip slaying" in which pretty Jessie Pepper, 17, was convicted of manslaughter, was headed for the Supreme Court today, with lawyers, encouraged by the jury's recommendation that every possible mercy be shown.

Miss Pepper shot and killed Mary Elvin Allen, 17, in a neighborhood feud which began with gossip. Judge James W. Jones, Jr., sentenced the girl to only 6 to 18 months in prison.

Author Flies Here

more notice than it deserves."

The British foreign office, he said, has gone along on old ideas of national competition and has failed to keep pace with the times.

9-POWER PACT "SILLY"

The nine-power pact, he said, seemed to him to be "a silly and complicated diplomatic game," the results of which he "would not dare to predict."

Regarding the films, he said he was not satisfied with his two movie ventures, "Things to Come" and "Men Work Miracles," but declared he would not go to Hollywood to give American producers a chance at pleasing him. He said:

"I thought at one time that I would give myself to the films, but the films showed an extraordinary disinclination to give themselves to me."

He added that Hollywood was doing romantic stories—the "boy meets firl" type—better thany anybody could. "Louis Pasteur" and "Emile Zola" were done about as well as they could be done. He praised "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town."

NEXT WAR ABOUT 1940

He said:

"With regard to 'Henry VIII' and 'Mutiny on the Bounty' and that historic type Hollywood can take more liberties with English than you can in London. For example, Hollywood showed they drank ale out of tankards in 'Henry VIII'—of course that was done in the days of George III."

Youth has taken its place in politics, he said, because there has been a "general stirring up of human minds and souls."

Wells' work here will be directed, he said, "to raise the standard of education for free living men in a free country to a comparable level of what the modern battleship is to the wooden ship of the days of Trafalgar."

Likelihood of war between 1940 and 1945 is seen by the author. He said:

"Armament organizations at that time will be at their maximum and the guns will start to go off before they get rusty."

"Common sense is the only thing that can stop a future war," he said.

NO REVOLUTION COMPLEX

The part of "The Outline of History" from 1914 on will be rewritten, he said, because things are in better focus now than when it was written and national "undergrounds" are better known. He said that part was "like a newspaper," but added, "we didn't have many bad guesses."

England? There will be no revolution there. The English are not "a revolutionary people."

"There has been no revolution—or even insurrection of a serious nature—in England since the days of Cromwell," he said. "Revolution is a habit people get into and out of."

Regarding Utopia in "Men Like Gods," he said he had given that much thought since the 80's, and while he has not reversed his position "he has learned more."

Russia? The executions?

He said: "Wasn't it a pity they did not shoot some generals in Spain in time?"

Borah Demands Anti-Trust Law

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Senator Borah said today the time had come when Congress must pass anti-trust legislation "and not just talk about it."

President Roosevelt has proposed that the special session of Congress strengthen existing laws to "end restraints now imposed upon business by private monopolies and financial oligarchies."

Borah, asked if he had tactics of his own in mind, replied that he would cooperate with and await the initiative of the administration, "at least for a while."

Borah's own solution for "driving monopoly from control and breaking its grip once for all" is a bill to provide national charters for all corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce.

The ministry declared the train carried no troops.

CIO-AFL Peace Plans Hinge on 'Industrials'

Union Issue Caused Lewis' Revolt In 1935

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Peace conferees of the CIO and the A. F. of L. sought today to reach an understanding on which industries should have unrestricted industrial unions.

This is the fundamental issue which leaders agreed must be settled if the more than 7,000,000 workers in the rival labor factions are to be united under one banner.

The conferees—ten from the CIO and three from the A. F. of L.—discussed it Friday without reaching an agreement, then adjourned until 2 p. m. today.

Leaders said the fact that discussion had begun on this point brought labor's two-year-old civil war nearer settlement. None would say however that the chances for agreement were bright.

It was the industrial union issue that occasioned John L. Lewis' CIO revolt in 1935. At the federation's San Francisco convention in 1934, the delegates voted to set up industrial unions in automobile, steel, rubber, cement and aluminum.

That winter, however, the federation's executive council decided that the craft unions should enroll tool and die makers and maintenance men in the automobile industry.

At the next convention Lewis demanded the council action be rescinded. When the convention upheld the council, Lewis and seven associates formed the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Lewis Plans CIO-Farm Alliance in Northwest

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (INS)—CIO leaders, considering their movement politically entrenched in the industrial East, are quietly forging the links of a voting alliance with farmers of the Northwest, it was learned today.

E. L. Oliver, mild-mannered vice-president of labor's non-partisan league, has been chosen by John L. Lewis to direct the job. Lewis is chairman both of the League and the CIO.

Groundwork for absorption by the Farmer-Labor party of the CIO's political apparatus in Minnesota has already been laid by Oliver in conference with the party leaders at St. Paul. The CIO is willing to give up its political identity there.

CIO confederation with the La Follette progressive party in Wisconsin and with farm organizations in Iowa, Michigan and the Dakotas will be discussed at a series of midwest "dirt farmer" conferences Oliver will address soon.

Seeks to Identify Victim of Amnesia

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 8 (AP)—Police today attempted to identify an amnesia victim who things he served as an officer on a subchaser during the World War.

The man said he recalled a telephone number that began with "Beacon," but couldn't remember the remainder, and recalled a "Green street." He is 5 feet 11 inches, weighs about 170, has dark brown hair, andis in his forties.

Jurors Told Of Simpson 'Struggle'

in the car. Although Bell was shot in the car, Boyle intimated the defense expects to show the blood was Simpson's, not Bell's—this to show that Simpson was shot by Bell.

The state police took the covers, Captain Goode testified. District Attorney Warren Bishop interrupted the cross-examination to say:

"Don't worry about them; they'll be here."

In medical terms, Dr. Gallagher described Bell's and Murphy's wounds.

Bell, he testified, was shot through the right shoulder, about four and one-half inches from the top, the bullet emerging from his back, close to the spine.

SHOT AT CLOSE RANGE

There were powder burns in a two-inch area around the wound, Dr. Gallagher stated indicating the muzzle of the pistol was in close proximity to Bell's body.

A second bullet, Dr. Gallagher said, entered midway on the right side of Bell's chest.

He was unable to find any exit, the doctor stated, and finally resorted to X-rays, which disclosed the bullet lodged in the lower part of Bell's spine.

In getting this bullet out, he testified, he had to saw it in two. He identified the two halves, which were offered in evidence.

Murphy, Dr. Gallagher stated, was shot once, through the abdomen. The bullet emerged at the back, about 3 inches from the spine.

KILLED BY BULLETS

Both Bell and Murphy, Dr. Gallagher said, died as a result of their wounds. Attorney Boyle, in cross-examination, demanded to know whether it wasn't true Bell died as a result of an operation and while being operated on. Dr. Gallagher replied Bell died some time after the operation had been performed.

Ballistics experts were expected to take the stand later in the day to link the bullets with the gun the state says was Simpson's. Chief of these was to be Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state ballistics head.

An earlier witness was Edward Rachis, Englewood avenue, Brookline, who testified that the death car belonged to him and had been stolen on June 28.

The state already has introduced the "phoney" license plates from the car—plates made by cutting three sets of legal plates and joining sections of them together.

Hangs Out Train, Falls to Death

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (AP)—Railroad detectives investigated today the death of a young Chicago pianist whom motorists saw hanging by his finger tips from the window sill of a mile-a-minute Michigan Central train and battling vainly to pull himself back to safety.

The victim was William F. Erlandson, 30, who was returning from New York, where he had competed in a contest for young pianists.

Automobilists on the highway raced abreast of the train. And drivers pointed to the man in an effort to direct train passengers' attention to him.

They said Erlandson, exhausted, finally loosened his grip and plunged to his death along the tracks.

Senator Lodge Speaks Tonight

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., will be the chief speaker tonight at a dinner given in his honor at the Hotel Bancroft, Worcester, by the Republican Business and Professional Women's Club of Central Massachusetts.

The senator notified members that he would reach the hotel early this afternoon to meet members and discuss any national affairs they might be interested in.

DENVER, Nov. 8 (AP)—Eight inches of snow fell at Berthoud Pass and six inches at Leadville. Warm rain fell in western Colorado, and a dust storm swept Denver.

Martin Seen Due To Take House Leadership

Snell Loses Ground As G. O. P. Rifts Endanger Party

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — The division in Republican ranks, as between Landon and Hoover, is perhaps the least significant of the party rifts revealed by the difference of opinion over the off-year convention upon which the former President staked his prestige and his comeback.

The immediate danger to party solidarity lies in Congress. Here the spectacle was presented by Bert Snell, of New York, favoring Mr. Hoover's convention, and Representative Joe Martin, of Massachusetts opposing it.

This was a real fiasco, for Snell is the Republican leader of the House of Representatives, and Martin is the assistant leader.

These two gentleman supposedly direct party strategy in the House, and when one marches down one street, and the other marches down another, it's just a tough break.

G. O. P. PERILS

The convention squabble has probably accentuated the perils and difficulties of Republican leadership in Congress, on the eve of the extra session.

Snell is a veteran Congressman, but Martin is the smarter politician, and soon or late this emphasized difference between them will lead to a showdown over House minority leadership, and possibly in the election of Martin as leader in place of Snell.

House Republicans have hardly yet recovered from the schism caused when John Tilson, of Connecticut, was turned down as leader, and Snell chosen in his stead.

These things aren't good medicine for political parties, and heaven knows that the battle-scarred and storm-tossed infinitesimal Republican minority in the House of Representatives needs more of the cohesive power of party, and not less.

HARD TO UNITE PARTY

If Snell had been quicker in his thinking he probably never would have favored the mid-season get-together.

He would have realized the impossibility at this time of uniting the Republican party on matters of detailed policy.

He has never been able to do it in the House.

At times he has called a party "caucus," only to be mortified by having half the party strength in the House remain away.

He has led his minority against Roosevelt measures, only to see half his strength support the opposition.

The situation on the Republican side of the House hasn't been improved.

* * *

The CIO setback in the Detroit elections did more to bring John L. Lewis into harmony line with Bill Green than Senator Berry's peace overtures. It revealed to the sagacious Lewis the continuing political danger to labor as a whole in face of divided ranks.

Detroit was thus one of the decisive battles on the labor front.

French Arrest 100 Royalists

PARIS, Nov. 8 (AP)—Police confiscated hundreds of Royalist pamphlets accusing the Peoples's Front Government of leading France toward war and briefly held 100 youths arrested in a round up today.

Then they found that the same pamphlet was published in thousands of copies of today's issue of the Royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise and released all but one of the prisoners. Police officials said they were "disheartened."

Two Youths Escape Stolen Car Pursuit

Two youths escaped early today after a police chase in a stolen car through South Boston.

The speeders eluded Patrolmen Alec Nesky and Timothy Wallace after jamming their machine to a halt at A and Silver streets, because of a flat tire. The automobile was reported stolen from a North End man several hours earlier.

Clue to Hit-Run N. H. Killer Seen In Lost Shoe

13 Dead in Week-End N. E. Mishaps; Train Hurls 3 to Death

Through a missing shoe, believed to have been ripped from the victim's foot, police today hoped to apprehend the hit-and-run driver whose automobile struck and killed 17-year-old Walter Koson on the Cold River-Walpole, N. H., highway Saturday night.

Authorities have concluded the driver returned to the scene after the fatal accident and threw the Cold River youth's body over a 20-foot embankment, at the bottom of which it was found yesterday.

Investigators are working on the theory the shoe may have become wedged in the bumper or mudguard of the car without the driver's knowledge.

WEEK-END TOLL 13

Koson, one of the 13 persons who met violent death in New England's week-end accident toll, was apparently hurled against a cement pole by the automobile, examination of his injuries has revealed.

The ruthless concealment of the body was regarded by authorities as an attempt to delay discovery of the accident.

TRAIN KILLS THREE

In another tragic New Hampshire accident, a mother and her two small children were hurled to death by a speeding train on a trestle near Penacook.

Rooted by fright as the approaching Montreal-bound Boston and Maine express roared toward them, Mrs. Dorothy E. Sergeant, 42, of Penacook, her daughter, Emily, 8; and a son, Henry, 7, were catapulted into the Contoocook river 40 feet below.

The triple tragedy occurred yesterday afternoon as the victims were crossing the narrow span. Trapped by the onrushing train, they were unable to reach safety before speeding death overtook them.

TOO LATE TO STOP

Engineer Charles Hodgson reported he saw the huddled group a moment before they were struck and applied the brakes, but the train could not be halted in time.

Mother and the daughter's bodies were recovered later in the Merrimack river. Search for Henry's remains was taken up again today.

The father of the little family, Henry Grant Sargent, 70, an invalid for five years, was prostrated by the shock. It was feared he might not recover.

Reporter Slain By Widow's Son

MUSKEGON, Mich., Nov. 9 (INS)—Foster Steven Gee, 15-year-old high school pupil, defending his wealthy and attractive mother from what he believed was impending harm, today shot and killed her suitor, Floyd Peterson, 43-year-old newspaperman, who was born in Bridgeport, Conn., according to Sheriff Louis Eklund.

The shooting occurred in the Gee home at Whitehall, near here.

The boy and his mother, Mrs. Ruby L. Gee, a widow and owner of extensive real estate holdings in the Whitehall summer resort region, will be brought here to make formal statements to Prosecutor Fred Pratt. No charges have been filed against the boy.

Both the mother and boy in preliminary statements said Peterson had been spending the week-end at the Gee home.

Early this morning Peterson became intoxicated, the pretty widow told the sheriff, and threatened her with a revolver. Her son left the room, she said, and returning with a shotgun, fired a fatal blast into Peterson's body.

Seize Suspect In Girl Attack

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Nov. 8—Police today arrested Wilfred H. Forand, 33, of Lafayette street, North Attleboro, a mill worker, on a charge of attempted attack on a nine-year-old Attleboro girl, after a search of woods near his home.

Forand was turned over to Attleboro police.

He was held for appearance in Attleboro court.

Several witness identified him as the man who attempted the attack, police said.

N. H. Motorists Bag 3 Deer in 3 Days

Rochester, N. H., Nov. 8 (AP)—Three deer in three days—that the record of motorists in this stretch.

Notables Pay Tribute to Woburn's Own 'Dan'

GENERAL COLE — CONGRESSWOMAN ROGERS — LT.-GOV. KELLY — SENATOR LODGE — STATE AUDITOR BUCKLEY

If Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, the American Legion's new national commander, had any doubts about the sincerity of his host of friends, today there can be none. For yesterday thousands from all over the state and from every walk of life gathered at the Woburn Common to pay heartfelt tribute to the man who brought honor to the Bay State. For two hours "Dan's" comrades and friends marched past him, pouring out their devotion and respect in a stirring demonstration. Here are some of the notables who watched the parade from a reviewing stand. They are, left to right, Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole, Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, Lieutenant-Governor Francis Kelly, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley.

America the opportunities afforded them or the pleasures they enjoy and children compared to what I have witnessed during my recent trip throughout Europe.

"We have the greatest system of education in the world here in the United States, but attempts are being made to destroy it and the appeal by subversive organizations are being made directly to the school children to assist in the battle of destruction.

"If the American Legion can depend on the full support of the younger generation to assist the one million legionnaires that I represent, the battle is practically won."

RECEPTION IN HONOR

Commander Doherty appeared at Melrose high school following the monster celebration and reception held in his honor in Woburn yesterday.

More than 100,000 persons, composed of Woburn's citizenry and Bay State legionnaires and families, lined the three-mile parade route to pay tribute to their hero.

Legion units, numbering over 150, with a total of 15,000 marchers, welcomed "Danny" Doherty back to his native city.

Never in the history of the state was such a tribute paid to any individual as to Woburn's "Own Danny" yesterday.

National, state, city, fraternal and veteran organizations assisted in making the celebration one that will go down in Bay State history.

Heading the national leaders was Massachusett's own youthful Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. Congressmen present included, Edith Nourse Rogers, Arthur D. Healy and John W. McCormack.

Adjustant General Charles Cole represented Governor Hurley, Lieutenant Governor Francis Kelley, Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, State Auditor Thomas Buckley, State Fire Marshal Stephen Garrity, Mayor Edward Kenney, of Woburn, Joseph J. McElroy, sheriff of Middlesex County, Dean Gleason L. Archer, of Suffolk Law School, Judge William Henchey, of Woburn District Court, Charles P. Howard, state budget commissioner and scores of other leaders were seated in the reviewing stand located directly in front of Woburn City Hall.

GREETS 10,000 FRIENDS

At the conclusinon of the parade a reception was held in the city hall aldermanic chambers, where Doherty personally greeted more that 10,000 friends.

Among the proud guests was Commander Doherty's wife, his aged mother, his brothers, Dr. John L. and Dr. Joseph A. Doherty, and four sisters, Bertha, Ann, Helen and Mrs. D. C. Mather, of Manchester, N. H.

Following Commander Doherty's visit to the office of Governor Hurley in the State House today, he will leave immediately for Washington to confer on veteran legislation and thence to Indianapolis, where national legion headquarters are located.

First, Last Ride

MINTURN, Colo., Nov. 8 (AP)—Undertaker Oscar Meyer was the first to ride in his new hearse. Meyer, also a deputy sheriff, was killed while attempting an arrest.

DAN DOHERTY — MRS. DOHERTY — JOAN FOLEY

The "home-coming" demonstration brought to "Dan" Doherty realization of his dreams even more so than his actual election as Legion commander in New York. At times during the parade his eyes filled with tears and he was visibly shaken. Here Mrs. Doherty, who cried a little herself, receives a bouquet of flowers and a kiss from little Joan Marilyn Foley of Lowell while "Dan" looks on smilingly.

Doherty Parade Highlights

Newton Post, No. 48, winner of the national championship drill team, acted for the first time in official capacity when it escorted Commander Doherty along the parade route and also posted the national colors of the legion in the reviewing stand.

* * *

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge received great applause along the route from his thousands of friends and, when offered the use of an open car to ride in during the parade, refused. He marched along as a member of Commander Doherty's staff.

* * *

Richard Morrissey, for the past 10 years state department sergeant-at-arms and recently appointed national department sergeant-at-arms, received the plaudits of his comrade legionnaires as he marched along in his new uniform. "Dick" led the Newton post drill team.

* * *

"Bossy" Gillis, marching with the Newburyport Post, was well received. It seemed that "Bossy" was no stranger in Mayor Kenney's city.

* * *

Captain Ben Pine, of fishing schooner fame, was at the helm of Gloucester's contingent to the Doherty parade. Ben was dressed in yellow oilskins and wore a real sou'wester.

* * *

Little 3-year-old Jean Tancrill, of Uxbridge, who headed that community's delegation, was the youngest boy in the parade, while four-year-old Joan Marilyn Foley, of Lowell, won honors of being the youngest female drum major in the parade.

Both of these youngsters presented Commander Doherty with boquets of American roses.

* * *

The parade took nearly three hours to pass the reviewing stand in Woburn square.

* * *

All the past Commanders of the State Department, as well as several department commanders from other New England states, were seated in the reviewing stand as guests of the Bay State legionaires.

* * *

A picturesque sight was Sheriff Joseph McElroy, of Middlesex county, leading deputy sheriffs and court officers, numbering nearly 50, in the parade. Sheriff McElroy wore the official robes of his office.

Perhaps the largest visiting county delegation was Worcester county's with several hundred members and six bands.

Red Cross in Year Aided Over Million

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (INS)—Aid of the Red Cross was extended in the year which ended June 30 last to 1,075,000 victims of 125 disasters, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the organization, announced today.

Cambridge Vote 'Police Threat' Charge Fizzle

An anticipated complaint against a Cambridge police inspector for reputedly intimidating a young woman voter on election day failed to materialize in East Cambridge court today.

While court authorities waited for the young woman's husband to file his charges, Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy indignantly denied there had been any complaint, verbal or written, against the conduct of any police officer last Tuesday.

Further denial came from Sergeant Patrick J. McCarthy, who was quoted as saying a verbal complaint was made to him at headquarters last night.

McCarthy said that a man did inquire as to whether a certain inspector in plainclothes was not on duty at the polls and whether such an officer had the same duties as a police officer at a voting place.

Originally, McCarthy was reputed to have said the man told him the police official had visited his home twice and warned his wife not to vote.

While authorities waited vainly for the filing of the complaint, the election commission announced it will meet later in the day to fix the time for the recount in the disputed mayoralty election, in which John W. Lyons apparently defeated Mayor John D. Lynch by a narrow margin.

It was apparent, at the same time, that the retabulation of votes cannot be started before Friday.

The commission was also expected to take up the matter of challenged voters at the election.

Two of the four commissioners, it was reliably learned, spent several hours at the State House today, scrutinizing the state election laws.

'Suicide Guard' Over Mrs. Hahn

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 8 (INS)—While attorneys planned to carry her case to "the United States Supreme Court if necessary," Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn sat morosely in her cell today and muttered denials she is a mass poison murderer.

Completely deflated by the jury's verdict which condemned her to the electric chair yesterday, the "modern Borgia," who allegedly wheedled money from her elderly men friends and then poisoned them showed suicidal tendencies in her despair.

A special "suicide guard" was put over the comely, blonde-haired German immigrant woman, who came to this country in 1929 and, according to the state, fatally poisoned four men and one woman for their modest savings.

Mrs. Hahn's fate was sealed by a jury of 11 women and one man who condemned her on the second ballot. One juror at first wished to spare her for Mrs. Hahn's 11-year-old illegitimate son, Oscar, but later decided the son would be better off without her.

Jacunski's Father Dies

Rivers' Mother Freed on Bond In Shooting

Governor of Georgia Rushes Brother To Help Her

NASHVILLE, Ark., Nov. 8 (INS)—Mrs. R. C. Kelly, mother of Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia, remained secluded in her home today and refused to discuss the shooting charge against her.

She is accused of wounding J. R. Page, 68, a former alderman here, when he called at her home last Wednesday. He is still in a serious condition with a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Mrs. Kelly, who is 65, was not arrested until yesterday and immediately posted a $500 bond for her release. Page was too ill to be questioned and Mrs. Kelly declined to explain what had precipitated the shooting.

WARNED TO STAY AWAY

Deputy Sheriff J. G. Reese, who served her with the warrant, said he knew only that Page had called at Mrs. Kelly's home in nearby Mineral Springs despite her previous warning that he stay away.

He said she again told Page to leave but that he was slow in doing so and a bullet was fired through the door, striking him in the abdomen.

Deputy Reese, an old friend of both Page and the Kelly family, said he had not been informed of the reason for Mrs. Kelly's animosity toward Page. He said her trial probably would not be held before the February term of court.

WIDOWED YEARS AGO

Mrs. Kelly is the former Annie Rivers of Mineral Springs, Ark., where the present Georgia governor was born and reared. She was widowed many years ago and since remarried.

The Rivers family has long been prominent in this section of the state and the charge against the former Mrs. Rivers created a sensation among the residents as they speculated on the reason for the alleged attack.

Gov. Rivers was said to have been notified as soon as his mother was arrested and quickly sent a brother, James S. Rivers here to handle any legal difficulties that might arise.

Coast Guard Hunt Ends With 4 Safe

SWANSEA, Nov. 8 (AP)—A mother whose anxiety for her son and three companions started a coast guard hunt my air and sea reported today their safe arrival at Little Compton, R. I.

Mrs. Ada Miller of Swansea said she had been advised by telephone that her son, Albert, 23, and three companions, Harry Smith, 20, Everett Smith 25, and George W. Tew, 26, were at Little Compton after being missing since yesterday morning.

French Jail, Exile Couple for Spying

MARSEILLE, Nov. 8 (AP)—A military court today sentenced Victorian Mao and his wife to 10 years in prison for espionage, and added a period of exile from France for 20 years after the sentence has been served.

Laurent Galangau and his wife were sentenced to five years as accessories.

Citizens' Group Aid for Tobin Predicted

Boston's Mayor, Elect Must Retrench On All Fronts

Formation of a citizen's committee to assist Mayor-elect Maurice J. Tobin in handling many of the problems that face him in Boston's complicated governmental situation was predicted today by political observers.

Tobin, now motoring through Vermont on a brief vacation with Richard Whitcomb of Springfield, division manager of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, has a man-sized job awaiting him when he takes office.

In addition to an alarmingly high tax rate, the young chief executive must find a place for many who supported him in the election.

It was pointed out that the conservative elements and the youth groups which backed the mayor-elect both must be satisfied. That some friction will result here when the jobs available are handed out seems inevitable.

After ironing out these difficulties which are far more troublesome than they can be made to appear in print, Tobin must find the solution to the city's $16,000,000 school debt.

As school committeemen, the new mayor knows well that Boston's per capital costs for pupils are far in excess of those in other cities. The costs must be cut and it is up to Tobin to do it.

His course is well-defined. It is, political experts here say, one of necessary retrenchment along all fronts.

To accomplish this, one of his first acts is expected to be the naming of the citizens' committee to begin digging in immediately after his inauguration.

Fail to Identify Amnesia Victim

An attractive young woman, found sitting on a curbstone near the Charles street jail, Friday night, a victim of amnesia, has not been identified and is unable to help police establish her identity, authorities at the Boston Psycopathic Hospital said today.

As a result of information furnished by a Stamford, Conn., woman to police they are working on a clue that may identify her as a Stamford domestic. The amnesia victim was wearing a coat bearing the label of a Stamford store. She had a handkerchief in her pocket with the initial "M." on it.

N. H. Auto Owner's Tax Put at $50

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 8 (AP)—The average automobile owner in this state will pay $50 in taxes this year, according to a survey made by Stinson L. L. Taylor, secretary of the New Hampshire Petroleum Committee.

Taylor said that this amount represents two weeks' income for many families owning cars. Slightly more than half of the automobiles, he reported, were owned by families with incomes of $30 a week or less.

25,000 Japanese Troops Cut Off By Chinese

Battles Rage on All Sides of Shanghai With Heavy Loss

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8 (AP)—Chinese declared tonight they had launched a counter-offensive to isolate a Japanese force south of Shanghai, estimated at 25,000 men, from its landing base on the seacoast.

Severe fighting broke out both south and west of Shanghai. In Chekiang province, to the south, Chinese declared they had repulsed a surprise Japanese thrust toward Shanghai.

Japanese reported advances south of Soochow Creek, in western Shanghai. Chinese reinforcements rushed to Sungkiang, a vital point in the Chinese defenses against which one of three Japanese columns was striking.

FIGHT ON WHANGPOO

Another Japanese column, Chinese communiques reported, was held on the far side of the Whangpoo when Chinese defenders forced a vanguard back across the stream at Minhang.

Chinese asserted that not only were their positions north of the Whangpoo secure against Japanese but also that the attackers were in danger of being cut off from their shore base by a Chinese flanking operation.

Some Japanese officials said a flying column severed the railroad near Sungkiang but the official Japanese spokesman tonight said he had no authoritative reports. The railroad is a main channel of Shanghai to the southeast.

Chinese units from the Kashing-Kashan area, 48 miles southwest of Shanghai, were reported to have routed Japanese from Changyen.

CLAIM 4000 RETREAT

On the front west of Shanghai's French concession, Japanese asserted that 4000 Chinese were retreating under intense aerial and artillery bombardments from the area between St. Mary's Hall and Kwangwha University.

They said a Japanese force captured the village of Tsukazah, south of the Lincoln road, and seized 10,000 Chinese grenades.

Although a Japanese spokesman asserted there were indications that defense troops were on the verge of collapse south of Soochow creek, neutral observers traversing the area tonight said they saw no signs of Chinese withdrawals.

Japanese planes again bombed parts of Pootung.

Semi-official Chinese sources acknowledged that fighting had spread south of Lincoln road. They declared, however, that Chinese artillery had destroyed two pontoon bridges over Soochow creek, preventing Japanese tanks and artillery from crossing.

They said 700 Japanese infantrymen were mowed down attempting to cross the stream.

Fear 12 Britons Are Trapped in China War

PEIPING, Nov. 8 (INS)—Growing anxiety was evidenced here today for the safety of twelve British missionaries, including four women, trapped at Taiyuan by violent hostilities between Japanese and Chinese troops.

Scores of foreigners, including some Americans, were reported to have fled the city, capital of Shansi province, during the night. They heeded a Japanese warning to evacuate by morning or be treated as combatants.

The British missionaries remained behind and were apparently caught in the field of hostilities.

The Japanese vanguard early moved up to the gates of the city and preliminary stages of a gigantic battle for possession of the Shansi provincial capital were in progress.

Duel Starts Fire In American Plant

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8 (AP)—Fire started by an artillery duel between Chinese and Japanese batteries on the front west of Shanghai caused heavy damage tonight to the American-owned Far Eastern Match Company.

The plant, located north of Soochow Creek, is valued at about $1,000,000.

Stills Fear Over Lost Missionary

Church Board Heads Believe Dutton Is Safe in China

The Rev. Philip Dutton, one of eight Americans reported missing in the heavy fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops at Taiyuan, China, spent his most recent furlough at the Walker Missionary Home, Hancock street, Auburndale, and is well known in this section.

Mrs. Arthur Robinson, wife of the superintendent of the Walker home, expressed the opinion today she was the last one to have seen the missionary before his disappearance.

Mrs. Robinson, who arrived last night from China with her two sons, said she accompanied Dutton from his temporary residence at Peiping to the boat landing whence he started on a roundabout journey to his station in Taiku, 40 miles southeast of Taiyuan.

"NO REASON FOR ALARM"

Mrs. Robinson's opinion that there is no reason for alarm was shared by the Rev. Dr. Wynn C. Fairfield, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, in Beacon street.

Their belief is that the missionary had not reached Taiku because of the circuitous route he planned to follow. His wife and one of his two sons are in Peiping.

His other son is a student at Oberlin College, in Ohio, the minister's native state.

20 YEARS MISSIONARY

The Rev. Mr. Dutton has been in the foreign mission service in Taiku, Shansi Province, for 20 or 25 years.

Mrs. Robinson disclosed that she had lived in the same house as Dutton prior to his departure for Taiku. She reported that the women and children of the families of missionaries are "reasonably safe" in Peiping while the men remain at their posts.

ELSIE ROBINSON, writes from the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

Death Rampant On Red Holiday

MOSCOW, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Russian masses enjoyed a holiday today in celebration of the 20th anniversary of the revolution, but there was no halt in the Soviet Union's drive against its suspected enemies.

Seventeen death sentences were rported from th provinces, including 14 convicted members of a Trotskyist band in the Tartar Republic and three employes of vegetable and grain distribution services in the Ukraine.

Mukhamed Kurbanoff, commissar for home trade in Turkmenistan, his assistants and the head of the Ashkhabad trading services were removed from office and held for trial on charges of embezzlement and "criminal work" as food distributors.

The Minsk newspaper "Soviet White Russia" announced a reward for informers, naming 24 collective farmers, including women.

Charge Man Held Captor At Gunpoint

Policeman Tells of Foiling Foe in Plymouth

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 8—A tragedy may have been narrowly averted early today when, after picking up, in Manomet, a man found apparently intoxicated on the road, Policeman Peter Winter said he looked down to find a pistol pressed against his side.

Despite his predicament, Winter related later, he managed to talk soothingly to the man, then, when the gun wavered, overpowered and disarmed him.

At police headquarters, the man gave the name of Russell Lowell Ward, 35, Tiffany street, Providence. He had been drinking "moonshine," he said later to Judge Elmer Briggs. He said he had been working in a cranberry bog, purchased the gun in Providence yesterday because some boys were annoying him.

One cartridge in the gun was found exploded. Police launched an investigation to find out whether there were any unexplained shootings. Ward was held to the grand jury in $3000 bonds on charges of drunkenness, having a loaded gun without a permit, and assault with intent to murder.

Child Strangles To Death in Bed

A four-month-old girl was dead in Everett today, accidentally strangled while her twin sister slept safely beside her.

The child is Earlene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Elsey of Woodward street, Everett. The baby and her sister were put to bed for a nap while visiting the home of their grandmother. The baby was strangled when her head became caught between the spring and a bedpost.

Leaps 70 Ft. Twice Slightly Injured

FALL RIVER, Nov. 8—George R. Lynch, 34, of Fifth street, was nursing slight bruises today after two plunges from a 70-foot ledge.

Police said he jumped once without injury and then climbed back to take off a second time. They said he suffered only a cut on his scalp and arm bruises in the second leap.

Duce Withdraws 10,000 'Volunteers' From Spain

LONDON, Nov. 8 (INS)—As silently as they were sent, from 10,000 to 15,000 Italian "volunteers" have been withdrawn from Spain, it was confirmed in diplomatic quarters here today.

While the non-intervention commission in London was fumbling with the problem of withdrawals, Premier Mussolini was quietly reducing his support for the insurgents.

His move, the first big concrete peace gesture Europe has witnessed for years, will doubtless mean that France will not carry out her threat to throw open the Spanish frontier for a tide of aid to the Spanish loyalists.

Still most of the recalled troops are being sent to Libya, not home. There they will be in constant readiness to dash back to Spain if Franco's position should become precarious.

Diplomatic quarters believe Mussolini plans to reduce his forces in Spain to around 40,000 in the event the "census" commission which the non-intervention body proposes to send to Spain is actually dispatched.

Italy admits presence of 40,000 troops in Spain. Other sources place the number at 60,000 to 80,000.

Too Ashamed of Her Skin to Go to Party

Skin blemishes are aggravated by constipation. Just as it can cause loss of appetite, nervousness, weakness.

Dr. F. M. Edwards treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted remarkable improvement in their appearance. For his treatment he used a purely vegetable compound—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system.

If you have a pale face, sallow skin, blemishes, all you may need is this mild aid in relieving constipation. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are on sale at all druggists, 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢.

9-Power Parley, Near Collapse, Waits Jap 'No'

France, Italy, Russia Would Join U. S. On Committee

BRUSSELS, Nov. 8 (INS)—The nine-power conference headed towards collapse today under the weight of two overpowering burdens:

1. Japan was regarded as certain to reject the appeal for an exchange of views on China "with a small number of powers."

2. The parley appeared to be disintegrating under the inability of the represented nations themselves to get along.

U. S. ON COMMITTEE

Even if Japan did accept, prestige of the committee chosen to deal with Tokyo would be dimmed by bickering among its members.

This was shown today when attempts were made to speed the work of the conference by selection of a steering committee. Everybody wanted to be represented.

The muddle started when a small committee composed of the United States, Great Britain and Belgium was proposed for the sake of compactness and quick action.

France demanded membership as a matter of pride and prestige. Italy said she must be represented if France was. And the Soviets insisted on representation if Italy is on the committee.

WAIT JAPAN'S "NO"

Tomorrow the full committee meets again, and all indications are that no reply at all will have been received from Tokyo.

Japanese diplomatic quarters in Brussels were blunt in their predictions that Tokyo's note will be in the form of a stern "no," on the ground frequently voiced by Japan that no outside interference can be considered.

Television at Sea Received by Ship

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—Successful reception of television broadcasts by a liner at sea was reported today by Captain A. T. Brown of the Cunard White Star liner Britannic.

Captain Brown said the experiments, believed the first of their kind ever attempted, were performed October 29, 30 and 31 after the ship sailed from London.

"The pictures were extraordinarily clear, and the sound was perfect," he said.

Navy to Keep Old Vessels for Scrap

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Navy, after sinking or selling 200 vessels, has decided to keep it's old and discarded craft.

Suitable hulks will be used to build up a reserve of scrap metal, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, disclosed today in his annual report. Ships sold for junk or private use since the now-lapsed London limitation treaty was signed in 1930, brought a total of $1,496,156.

Franco 'Regrets' Sinking Freighter

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco had sent a note expressing regret for the sinking of the British merchantman Jean Weems, October 31. He said the insurgents offered to submit the questions of liability and compensation to arbitration.

Rich Boston Boy Found Wandering

Frazier Rushes By Plane to Aid Youth, 21

Telford Frazier, 21, former junior golf champion and a Boston and Swampscott socialite, was found wandering in a daze today at Sumter, S. C., according to word flashed here by Sumter police.

Boston police, not informed immediately whether or not the youth is an amnesia victim, notified his father, who left by plane for the South this morning.

The father, police said, is Lyman B. Frazier of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, listed in the North Shore Blue Book as having a summer address in Atlantic avenue, in the exclusive section of Swampscott. He is connected with Tifft Brothers, investments, Congress street.

According to police at Sumter, young Frazier was found hitchhiking and then asked aid of his questioners. He gave his address as 34 Atlantic avenue, Swampscott, and was technically held for violation of an ordinance banning hitchhiking, according to Boston police.

Frazier is an outstanding golfer. He attended Dartmouth last year and first came to the attention of the golfing world as the 18-year-old captain of Peabody High School's undefeated golf team.

Two years ago he tied with Harry Graff for the state junior golf championship at Woodland. Since then he had been successful in many club championships in Greater Boston.

Japan to Insist Chiang, Soongs Quit Power

High Authority Says Tokyo Won't Deal With Big Family

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8—Removal of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and all members of the famous Soong family from positions of dominance in Chinese affairs comprises the initial condition of any negotiations for peace in the Far East, a top rank Japanese authority made known for the first time today.

Outlining the Japanese attitude in an exclusive declaration as Nipponese troops completed an amazing 25-mile advance, cutting the last railway line connecting Shanghai with north and south China, the authority said:

"Chiang Kai-Shek must go. We'll never negotiate with him nor with any member of the Soong family."

POWERFUL FAMILY

The Soongs are the proudest and most powerful family in modern China. The wife of Chiang Kai-Shek is the former Mei-Ling Soong, a Wellesley College graduate, a sister of Mme. Sun Yat-Sen, the brilliant and courageous woman who married the founder of the Chinese Republic.

She has two sisters, neither as powerful nor as influential as herself, but forces to be reckoned with none the less, and one brother, T. V. Soong, who is the Chinese government's financial wizard.

Japan, the spokesman made clear, wants this hierarchy wiped from the Chinese picture altogether, and with them the governmental regime it established.

FROM HIGH AUTHORITY

"As a matter of fact," he said, "the whole Kuomintang (Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist Party) must be abolished before we have any traffic with the Chinese government."

It was the first admission that Japan is determined to get rid of China's No. 1 family, and the source from which it came, while undiscloseable by name, may be said to be the highest Nipponese authority in Shanghai at the moment.

Hold Rites Today For Capt. Barry

SCITUATE, Nov. 8—Funeral services for Captain James S. Barry, 68, noted life saver and mariner, were held today from his home, Beaver Dam road, followed by a requiem high mass at the Church of St. Mary of the Nativity.

Captain Barry, who had saved a score of persons from drowning, held two medals, one from the government and the other from the Massachusetts Humane Society. He was a Spanish American War veteran.

Roxbury Robbers Get $250 in Hose

Four young men, dressed in working clothes and driving an old car, broke into a dry goods store in Tremont street, Roxbury, early today and stole $250 worth of ladies' silk stockings.

Officers of Roxbury Crossing station were notified of the break by a young woman, who said she had seen two of the youths go to the door of the store. John J. Keene of Temple street, West Roxbury, estimated the value of the stockings.

Bridges Blasts Deal Checks

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 8 (AP)—U. S. Senator H. Styles Bridges today declared business' "incentive to do" had been killed by "New Deal restrictive legislation."

In an interview after a western tour, the Senator declared he was uncertain about the future and added that the "restrictive legislation" operated "to discourage the earnings and profits and acquisition of reserves to tide over slack periods."

A major decline in orders for new automobiles had affected other important industries, Bridges said. However, the Senator said, relaxation of "restrictive legislation" on earnings might stimulate business activity.

Nazis Ban Novel Of Polish Author

BERLIN, Nov. 8 (AP)—The official Reichsanzeiger announced today that "The Knights Of The Cross," by the Polish Novelist Henryk Sienkiewicz, had been banned in Germany on the grounds it was anti-German.

The book appeared in 1900. The author, who died in 1916, was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1905.

Treat CHILDRENS COLDS this Proved way

WHEN your child comes down with a cold, you can't afford to take needless risks. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you—Vicks VapoRub.

It has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. There's no "dosing"—no risk of spoiling appetite or disturbing a delicate digestion . . . and thus lowering resistance just when it is most needed. VapoRub can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

You simply massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin . . .

Almost before you finish rubbing, the youngster begins to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after the little one relaxes into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Wreckers Clear Away 17 Cars Of Freight

B. & M. Buses Used After Derailment at North Woburn

Nearly 100 men in an emergency crew worked today at North Woburn Junction untangling boxes, chairs, cases of eggs, automobiles, turkeys, lumber, newsprint and the wreckage of 17 freight cars, after the cars had jumped the Boston & Maine rails.

The derailment, just west of the junction, occurred shortly before midnight when, it is believed, a dragging brake rod caught in a switch, tripping that section of the Boston-bound freight train from the 11th to the 27th cars in the 39-car string.

Early morning passenger service over the New Hampshire division to and from Boston was maintained by regular trains, however, except from three small stations, by detouring locals via the Woburn loop and through trains via Lowell, Lowell Junction and the western route of the Portland division.

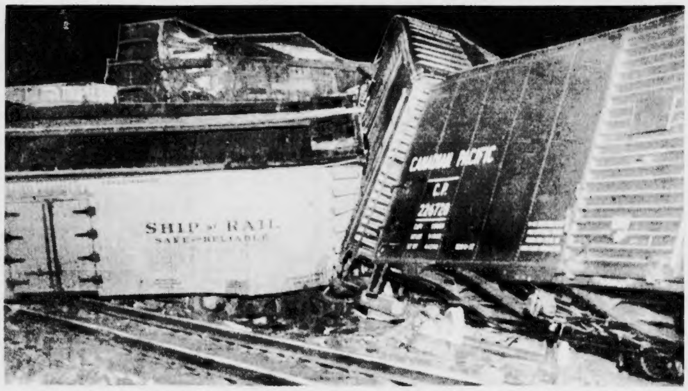
From Mishawum, South Wilmington and Walnut Hill, passengers were picked up by Boston & Maine buses and transferred at Winchester to their regular trains for Boston.

Outbound passengers for these stops were handled by bus from the Winchester station.

When the 17 freight cars rode off the rails, considerable of the roadbed was dug up, signaling equipment was damaged and telegraph and telephone poles were razed.

The damage, however, railroad officials said, will not exceed $25,000. Many of the cars and contents would be salvaged intact, it was believed.

After 16 Freight Cars Jumped Track



A twisted mass of splintered wood and iron greeted the camera's eye after 16 freight cars of the Boston & Maine's 39-car train from White River Junction, Vt., jumped the track in Woburn. A dragging brake which caught in an open switch was given as the cause of the mishap. Passenger trains were delayed as workmen began to clear the wreckage from the tracks. No one was injured.

President O. K.'s Birthday Fetes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (INS)—President Roosevelt today sounded the "go-ahead" signal for raising a gigantic war chest to fight infantile paralysis.

In a letter to Basil O'Connor of New York, treasurer of the Georgia Warm Springs foundation, the President authorized the occasion of his fifty-fifth birthday next January 30, for a nationwide chain of dances to raise money "for an attack on the disease on all fronts."

Every penny raised will be turned over to the New National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, creation of which he has sponsored.

Barn Fire Kills 2 Horses, Cow

Two horses and a cow were burned to death early today when a 75-year-old barn on the farm of Albert Frost on Pleasant street, Belmont, was destroyed by flames.

Two alarms were sounded for the blaze, the cause of which was undetermined. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert [illegible] and their 15-year-old daughter, [illegible], whose home is near the barn on Simmons avenue, were forced to flee when the fire threatened to spread.

Horses also stabled in the barn were saved but, according to Frost, 12 pieces of farm machinery, a mushroom garden in the basement and nine tons of hay were lost. Firemen summoned aid from Arlington, Watertown, Cambridge and Waltham.

Joan Romance Seen in Flight

Actress and Wanger Depart on Plane

Recurrent rumors of romance were stirred anew today after Joan Bennett, blonde glamour girl of Hollywood, and Walter Wanger, motion picture producer, took the same plane from Boston to Washington.

Movie capital gossip has linked the two frequently of late. They have been seen together on numerous occasions since the actress recently divorced from Gene Markey, screen hero.

Miss Bennett and Wanger, refusing to pose together for pictures, insisted that the plane meeting was "just coincidence."

Appearing in "Stage Door," which shifts to Washington today, Miss Bennett is playing her first stage role in eight years.

Tech Is Split On Flappers

Many Students Like Prim Type Best

Although results of a recent M. I. T. poll conducted by the student newspaper showed that Tech men like the flapper type for their dates, and "Miss Prim" for their future "Mrs.," there are a number of Tech youths who disagree.

In fact several seniors prefer the Miss Prim type for both wife and date. As one senior says:

"We seek girls who come from nice families, like to pet a bit, of course, but we are not out for the type of girl who smokes or drinks her way in an effort to court favor."

Freshmen, in fact, do not have many ideas on the subject of the type of girl they would like to marry. One youth, when quizzed, said that:

"This can take care of itself. I've got a girl back home. And, what's more, she's not a flapper."

The poll indicated the Tech boys liked their girls a bit fashionable, daring and unconventional. On the other hand, they would expect their future wives to be respectable, dress conservatively, and like art and literature, as well as home and a cottage.

Vote Frauds Hit By LaGuardia

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—Mayor LaGuardia invoked his police power today in a drastic attempt to prevent additional fraud in New York City's "proportional representation" election.

He ordered 125 detectives into armories in the five counties, telling them to keep close watch over the workers who are slowly—much too slowly, he said—tabulating the results from about 2,000,000 long paper ballots, cast Tuesday for members of the newly created city council.

Even as police moved into armories, Acting District Attorney Sylvester Ryan of Bronx county asserted he had found more evidence of election fraud in his borough. He said he would lay the evidence before the grand jury tomorrow and ask speedy indictments.

Mayor LaGuardia charged the count had been deliberately delayed and sabotaged. Tabulation of the "p. r." returns costs the city about $20,000 a day.

Reclaims Watch After 20 Years

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Nov. 8 (AP)—A 30-year-old key winder pocket watch, as good as the day it was purchased in Boston although it had hung on a jeweler's rack for 18 years, today was the prized possession of Hector MacLean, carpenter.

A friend turned over to MacLean the jeweler's claim ticket he received almost a score of years ago when he put up the timepiece for repairs. MacLean presented the ticket to the jeweler, who found the watch still on his rack.

'Col.' Brennan Seized by G-Man

"Colonel" Albert H. Brennan, 41, of Holyoke street, South End, alias Alonzo R. and H. R. Brennan, self-styled inventor of the "fuelless" engine seven years ago, was taken into custody by a G-man in Scollay square today on a warrant charging five counts of impersonating a government official.

Brennan was walking with a woman, according to Federal officials, when he was recognized by the Department of Justice agent.

Officials charge Brennan impersonated a Federal consulting engineer, "contracting" for oil and gasoline from several filling station proprietors on the pretense that he was in charge of [illegible] to be used for a government project.

It is alleged that Brennan collected the "difference" after telling the filling station men they would charge more than the actual amount of the sale.

Four years ago Brennan was arrested by federal officers for impersonating a NRA official, and in 1930 he served a six months sentence on a charge of larceny in connection with his "fuelless" engine scheme.

Brennan, a self-styled colonel according to federal agents, faces arraignment later today before U. S. Commissioner Henry N. Gutterman.

Rand-Bergoff Trial Opens

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 8 (AP)—Federal District Judge Carroll C. Hincks denied today motions to quash indictments against James H. Rand, president of Remington Rand, Inc., and Pearl L. Bergoff, self-styled "king of strikebreakers," who are charged with violating the Byrnes Act.

The judge also overruled demurrers filed with the quash motions. Counsel for the millionaire manufacturer and Bergoff had challenged the constitutionality of the act, known as the "anti-strike-breaking" law. Judge Hincks did not comment on their arguments.

The government was ready to go ahead with the trial of the defendants immediately after the judge announced his decision.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP)—The cases of Mayor Thomas P. McCoy and [illegible] Pawtucket, R. I., officials charged with disturbing the peace on a railroad train, were continued in police court today until Nov. 18 at the request of their counsel.

The Pawtucket chief executive, J. M. [illegible], city clerk, and [illegible] of the municipal [illegible] were present in court and were permitted to leave under bonds of $50 each.

The Pawtucket officials were removed from a New Haven-Providence bound train late Saturday afternoon after [illegible] the conductor complained of "bad language." Lieutenant James Griffey of the New London police said the Pawtucket men were returning from the Brown-Yale game in New Haven.

Little Sister Have a Care!

Simmons Frosh Must Be Careful 'Cause—

Simmons College undergraduates have to watch their step this year with approximately 20 per cent of the senior class having one or younger members of their family.

WHERE

Should I Borrow Money?

Many people find it necessary or advantageous to borrow money. The question then arises "Where should I borrow?"

FRIEND OR RELATIVE?

Probably the first and most natural source to consider is that of relatives or friends. Before approaching them, however, it is well to consider these points:

1. Can they afford to lend you the money?
2. Will the request embarrass you or them?
3. Do you want others to know your private affairs? (These points should also be considered when asking a friend or relative to endorse or cosign a note for you.)

BANK?

If you have the security to qualify for bank credit, that is, if you have stocks, bonds, real estate, well-to-do friends to sign for you, etc., then by all means go to your bank [illegible] well known source.

FINANCE COMPANY?

If you are one of the [illegible] who [illegible] bank credit, you can use a State licensed finance company such as our own.

We make loans from $10 to $300 on a simple, straight-forward basis—without any special kind of security. All you need to get cash here is the ability to make small regular payments on any loan plan you select.

Medical Revolt Stirs Doctors Of Bay State

Take Leading Roles In Row Over Use Of Public Funds

Massachusetts physicians today assumed a leading role in the "revolt" of 430 internationally known American medical men in favor of state medicine which threatens to create a broad breach in the American Medical Association.

The insurgent movement, which establishes a situation similar to the current labor controversy between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, is the first within the ranks of the AMA, ruling body of the profession in this country.

It was revealed when the committee of 430, of which Surgeon-General Thomas Parran, Jr., is one, published a statement calling for recognition of the principle that "the health of the people is a direct concern of the government."

ADVOCATE PLAN

The group advocated use of public funds for care of indigent sick and to establish centers for medical education and research throughout the nation. It recommended that a national health policy be formulated to provide adequate medical care for all of the population.

Dr. Channing Frothingham, of Boston, president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, asserted today that political control would be made impossible by such a policy. He said:

"It is a movement on the part of intelligent men of the country to perfect a constructive program to meet the cost of competent and adequate medical care.

"It would do away with compulsory sickness insurance and other absurd programs."

BACKED BY LABOR

The stand was [illegible] by Dr. Parran, who denied the movement was a "revolt" from accepted doctrines [illegible] declared [illegible] an approved [illegible].

Meanwhile, organized labor, in both the CIO and A. F. of L., is allied to the support of the program [illegible]. In a statement [illegible] Abraham J. Isserman, leading labor attorney of New York and New Jersey, declared:

"Labor will welcome the report of the committee of physicians as a positive aid in its program to bring adequate medical care to all, especially in the lower income brackets."

Christmas Basket Early Aid Is Urged

American-Advertiser Complete Organization for 25th Year

The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser today completed its organization for the annual Christmas Basket Fund campaign—the drive which for 25 consecutive years has brought Yuletide hope to many of Boston's neediest.

Organization for the drive is complete under the direction of a manager and staff long experienced in seeing that none of the city's most destitute is overlooked when Christmas Day rolls around.

Most earnestly, the management of the American and Advertiser asks your hearty and early support. The address is Christmas Basket Fund, 5 Winthrop square, Boston, and the time is NOW.

THOUSANDS OF NEEDY

Times for many admittedly are better but there are thousands in Boston who again this year will look to the annual campaign to give them at least the small happiness of a real Christmas dinner.

Yes, many thousands,—more thousands than the Christmas Basket Editor likes to think about—will have no Christmas joy except that held out to them by this worthy fund.

That is the reason why the more fortunate should continue and make the fund's silver anniversary the most substantial in its long history.

Untold thousands have been helped by the fund in the last quarter century. Most of them have not forgotten. Many, who as children, knew the Christmas Basket Fund as the only bright memory of their Christmas are donors today.

They have not forgotten that they once knew what a hungry, cheerless Yuletide means.

Those men and women are not the ones who have to be reminded that there are still such homes in Boston today. They are the first to lend their aid.

EARLY APPEAL

The Christmas Basket Fund is making an early appeal to those, who never having known want, sometimes are careless to recognize that misery exists and to some degree probably always will.

The drive has begun and it is your duty to see that Christmas baskets from these newspapers are furnished to those who would actually have no Christmas dinner otherwise.

You can aid this worthy philanthropy in two ways. First, you can send a cash donation to the Christmas Basket Fund. Second, you can take the names and addresses of one, two or as many families as you are able and see personally that they receive a Christmas dinner.

We will have the names and if other years be a weathervane there will be lots of them.

There are persons who prefer to contribute directly while others enjoy doing their good deeds personally. But if you cannot do it yourself, these newspapers are more than happy to do it for you. We will make your donation go further than you possibly could yourself.

MANY REQUESTS

Requests for Christmas baskets already have reached the editor. They will continue to arrive up until the day before Christmas.

In this connection, the editor wishes to instruct applicants for baskets to obtain an endorsement from their pastor, doctor or children's teacher, which will eliminate confusion in distribution.

Applicants should also write their names and addresses plainly and be sure to include the number of persons in the family. This is most important.

The editor also requests reputable organizations, clubs and church societies to investigate needy and eligible families and forward the names of those who should be recipients. Many of the neediest still shrink from personally seeking aid.

Please don't wait. Remember the fund early and send your contribution to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Massachusetts.

Return Coughlin Drive Opened

DETROIT, Nov. 8 (AP) — Attempts to win public support for the "committee of five million" drive for resumption of Father Charles E. Coughlin's recently halted crusades was under way here today.

Approximately 2200 persons, followers of the priest who abandoned both radio and his own newspaper subsequent to a church reproof, heard admirers describe Father Coughlin both as "obedient priest" and a victim of "churchianity."

Sponsors of the "committee of five million" plan to seek nationwide demands on the Vatican and the Archdiocese of Detroit to return Father Coughlin his previous activities in behalf of social and economic "reform."

The meeting here was announced as one of a series of rallies throughout the country.

Father Coughlin's present silence was ascribed by Walter Baertschi of Toledo, editor and now owner of the priest's newspaper, "Social Justice," to "money changers and churchianity rather than Christianity."

Yankee Division Ball Dec. 3

Yankee Division veterans, members of the war-time 26th Division, will celebrate the 20th anniversary of the outfit's arrival in France Dec. 3 at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, it was announced today.

A military ball will feature the observance, preceded by competitive events among the various units in the Greater Boston area attached to the division.

Spotlighting the ball will be an exhibition by the Newton Post, American Legion, drill team, which won the national championship at the recent New York national convention of the Legion.

Affiliated veterans organizations and their auxiliaries are aiding in the preparations.

Honorary chairman of the arrangements committee is Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole. Albert W. Barnard is general chairman.

Dr. Gavin Rites On Tuesday

Funeral services for Dr. George F. Gavin, one of South Boston's oldest and most respected citizens, will be held at St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, tomorrow, with high mass of requiem at 10 a. m.

Dr. Gavin, who had practiced 52 years in that district and who was of a family long prominent in the medical profession, died Saturday at his home, 351 Fourth street.

His family included three physician brothers, the late Drs. Michael F. Gavin, City Hospital and St. Elizabeth's Hospital trustee; Patrick F. Gavin and John H. Gavin.

Malden, Chelsea Woburn Vote

Voters will go to the polls tomorrow to elect mayors and other municipal officers in Malden, Chelsea and Woburn.

The closest battle is expected in Malden, where Mayor John D. Devir is seeking re-election against Edward J. Bushell, former assistant district attorney of Middlesex County, whom he led by but 500 votes in the primaries.

In Woburn, City Clerk William E. Kane (D) will be opposed for mayor by Alderman Kendall L. Johnson (R).

There is no contest for mayor in Chelsea, where Mayor Edward J. Voke is unopposed for re-election.

In all three cities, there will be contests for the school board, the city council and minor municipal offices.

Smith Girls Make Money

Fifth of Students Self-Supporting

NORTHAMPTON, Nov. 8—One-fifth of the Smith College student body is either partially or completely self-supporting, it was revealed today in a statement which showed the undergraduates had total earnings last year of $38,300.

The Self-Help Bureau, maintained by the warden's office, acts as a clearing house for jobs for students.

Among the various types of work, girls sold candy, books, furniture, cared for children, cooked, sewed, played piano, tutored, did office work and posed for art classes.

Still others sang in choirs, compiled statistics, made and altered clothes, gave alcohol rubs and one enterprising student established a lending library.

As an experienced observer of prospects, we deem it our duty to warn editorial writers, and others who are picking champions on the result of the recent election in New York City, to beware of prematureness. They must not oversell themselves.

It is true that the prospects of our observing were pugilistic, while the editorial writers' prospects are political, but in the matter of forecasting futures, we are inclined to think that it comes to about the same thing.

The editorial writers see Mayor LaGuardia, and Mr. Tom Dewey, and Mr. Bruce Barton as potential political championship contenders, and we want it understood clearly that we, too, think the gentlemen named are all pretty good.

But the caution that we learned at bitter cost in observing the prospects of pugilism, especially the heavyweights, prevents us from immediately joining the uproar of rosy prediction about the futures of the gentlemen. We want to see more of them.

They come in the political heavyweight class because they are all being mentioned by some of the editorial writers as of possible presidential timber. The president is the political title that corresponds in a general way to the heavyweight championship in fistianna.

It is the biggest there is.

We are wondering if the political heavyweight prospect is not sometimes likely to be as much of a headache to his friends, and admirers, and his handlers, as the pugilistic heavyweight prospect.

There is nothing as uncertain as the pugilistic heavyweight prospect. The pugilistic heavyweight prospect has been known to drive men nuts, although it is only fair to add that the mental stability of anyone who monkeys with a pugilistic heavyweight prospect is open to question to start with.

When you see a pugilistic heavyweight prospect shaping up like a million dollars in a preliminary scrap, stepping with the speed and grace of a gazelle, and belting out his opponent with dynamic punches, it is not well to immediately rush forth screaming the praises of this prospect, and proclaiming him a coming champion.

It is better to quietly retire to a corner, and ask yourself: "Who did he lick?" That is the important question. Who did he lick? Or should we say whom? Well, we are talking about prize fighting, so we will say who. You may ask yourself again, who did he lick?

Was it a good, sturdy opponent, or just some hamdonnie? Some pushover, as in the case of our new so-called potential political champs, Messrs. LaGuardia, Dewey and Barton, with poor old Tammany Hall? If it was a stout opponent, you may give the pugilistic heavyweight prospect serious consideration. Otherwise wait until you see him fight some guy whose heels are not round. It will save you many an error in premature prediction.

Wait until you see the pugilistic heavyweight prospect hit solidly on the gob, or chin.

He may have glass there. See how he reacts when he is hurt, and has to come from behind. He may have a little ki-yoodle in him, a little of the old fido.

A couple of distinctly fainthearted fellows have won the pugilistic heavyweight championship, but as a rule they have to have plenty of physical courage to get that high. We presume that applies to the political heavyweight championship too, only the courage must be moral rather than physical.

You never get a true line on a pugilistic prospect's physical courage until you see him down in the resin and sore beset, and probably you never get a true line on the political prospect's moral courage until you see him put to desperate test.

A great many things can happen to head off a pugilistic prospect. Overconfidence is one. He may get to believing the publicity that his handlers build up for him, and forget his P's and Q's. We imagine something like this can befall a political prospect, judging from the number that start, and never arrive.

In any event, we cannot judge the editorial writers' new prospects on one preliminary bout, which, as far as the national arena is concerned, is all that a New York City election amounted to. There are a number of other political heavyweight contenders scattered around the country, and besides, there is the old champion himself who may have to be reckoned with.

We once knew a pugilistic heavyweight prospect who won about thirty consecutive bouts all by K O fighting out in the tall sassafras, and the first time he stepped into a big time arena, the lights and the crowd so confused him that he got flattened by a bezeek who didn't know one hand from another. That might happen to a political prospect.

Quest Girl Sees Own 1st Film Test

Helen Hughes Thrilled; Says Screen Figure Looked Like Someone Else

Helen Hughes, winner of the talent quest conducted by the Boston Evening American, Sunday Advertiser and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, now in Hollywood, today continues her diary.

CHAPTER 19

I've seen my test.

It has left me with the strangest feeling I have ever had in my life.

In the first place, it didn't seem as though the girl going through the action there in front of me was anyone I ever knew. The lines sounded familiar, the action was there, but it was just as though the girl was someone else.

The studio called this morning and invited me out to lunch.

I didn't know then that they were planning to show the test.

As a matter of fact I didn't know about it until we started toward the commissary on an unfamiliar route.

"Would you like to see the test before lunch?" someone inquired.

I wasn't sure whether I wanted to see it or not, but by that time we had arrived in front of one of the projection rooms and before I knew what was happening I was leaning back in one of the big, leather upholstered seats staring at a blank screen.

Suddenly the lights went out.

Then came a shot of the blackboard with the words, "Test, Helen Hughes," scrawled across it.

At first, I didn't want to look.

And then I started to hear myself speak.

The rest seemed like something I dreamed.

My throat got all tight as the test progressed.

It seemed as though it went on forever, although they tell me it takes six minutes to run.

After the initial shock, I naturally wanted to see it again, this time in a more critical mood.

Then they let me run the fader, the little box attached to the arm of one chair which served to regulate the intensity of the voice as it comes from the screen.

This was fun.

I heard my voice as it would sound very, very soft. Then medium, then loud.

As far as the test itself is concerned, I can't say, because I honestly don't know.

I will say that the camera recorded a lot of things about me I never realized, principal among these being the fact that I looked awfully short.

I'm not really that short, now am I?

Well, after leaving the projection room we went straight to the commissary, although I must say that I was a bit too excited to do much justice to the food.

I'm having a wonderful, glorious and perfect time.

Hollywood is ideal, and don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

Crusade to Hold Open House

Visits to open houses of health and social service centers, scheduled tomorrow in the educational program of the Community Crusade, will offer a typical cross-section of how the privately-supported agencies in Greater Boston's Community Fund endeavor to serve the community.

Judge Baker Guidance Center, specializing in personality and conduct problems, will open its house at 38½ Beacon street from 10 to 12:30 p. m.

Boston Provident Association will have an inspection of its new offices at 7 Water street from 10 a. m. to noon.

Both centers of the Florence Crittenton League will be open from 10 a. m. to 12: Maternity Home and Hospital at 10 Perthshire road, Brighton, and Welcome House, 15 Custer street, Jamaica Plain.

Staff members of Beth Israel Hospital, 330 Brookline avenue, will be on hand from 2 to 5 p. m. Other open houses will be held at the Family Welfare Society from 3 to 5 p. m. in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium, Clarendon and Stuart streets; the Community Health Association from 2:30 to 4 p. m., the Mothers' Club at the North-West End office, 25 Blossom street, and the Brighton office, 19 North Beacon street; the North Bennet Street Industrial School, 39 North Bennet street, from 2:30 p. m. through the evening; and the Camp Fire Girls at 100 Boylston street from 7 to 9 p. m.

Education Week Opens Here

Schools throughout the State today began an observance of American Education Week with Governor Charles F. Hurley recognizing the week in an official proclamation.

The governor praised the pioneer work accomplished by Massachusetts in the field of education and urged that eternal vigilance be practiced to safeguard our progress and liberty.

Assemblies and special observances will be held in all types of schools throughout the State during the week.

"Her school system has been a model for her sister states but in education, as in all other things, eternal vigilance is the price of progress and efficiency, as well as liberty. Our citizens must give their earnest consideration to the problems of education."

Boston Boys Win Harvard Awards

Ten Harvard students from Mattapan and Dorchester have been awarded $1900 in scholarships from the William Stoughton Fund, it was announced today.

The awards, made on a basis of high scholastic standing, went to Paul G. Bamberg, Mattapan; Arthur Cantor, Mattapan, and Sherwood Fox, Alfred R. Houswenko, George S. Kurland, Philip Levine, Nathan Myers, Harry Pollard, Robert H. Salk, and Charles Zibbell, all of Dorchester.

Father of Maine State Aide Dead

GORHAM, Me., Nov. 8—William P. F. Robie, 74, member of a famous political family, was dead here today, the victim of a heart attack.

He is the father of Secretary of State Frederick Robie and the son of the late Governor Frederick Robie.

Concert to Aid Old Folks' Party

The Boston Chamber String Orchestra, under the direction of Richard A. Haggerty, will play its first concert December 8 at the Boston City Club, it was announced today. The concert is to benefit the annual Christmas old folks' party of the Volunteers of America.

PATRONIZE YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD THEATRE

By GEORGE HOLLAND

TWO WIDELY-KNOWN WALTERS with New England backgrounds were week-end visitors . . . One was Walter Wanger, Dartmouth graduate, and the other Walter O'Keefe, native of Hartford . . . Each came to town with missions having to do with the entertainment of the pee-pul . . . Wanger is the liege of Joan Bennett in that he owns the rights to her professional services . . . Joan's more recent husband, Gene Markey, was a Dartmouth graduate whose class was the same or adjacent to Wanger's . . . Wanger was here to see Joan and her performance in "Stage Door" . . . They flew together to Washington yesterday . . . It is surmised that part of the business discussion between the producer and his star concerned Miss Bennett's continuance with her stage career . . . Miss Bennett is drawing $2500 a week for her services.

But money isn't the main consideration here . . . The blonde star has a market value exceeding that figure in Hollywood . . . A film star is a fragile bit of property and the shrewd Wanger, whose new lampoon at Hollywood "Stand In," with Leslie Howard and Joan Blondell, is a huge success, is said to be worried whether Miss Bennett's further tour as a theatrical performer will do her much, if any, good . . . "Stage Door" failed to pack 'em in here.

• •

The breezy Walter O'Keefe planed in at 2 o'clock and rushed to the Ritz to get down to immediate business with Robert Emmett Dolan, his song-writin' partner of several years . . . Robert Emmett, or Bobby, once played the accompaniments to Walter's yodeling at Barney Gallant's in New York . . . They wrote a song called "Little By Little," which was a hit, and the two served time together on the same movie lot when sound struck the fillums . . . Since that disappointing experience, each has made his way in the world . . . O'Keefe scored heavily as a fill-in for Fred Allen on the "Town Hall Tonight" program . . . Dolan has distinguished himself as an orchestra director, and is now conducting the orchestra at the Colonial Theater . . . Unlike Walter Wanger, who is quite inaccessible except through his press relations counsel these days as befits his station as a big Hollywood magnate, The O'Keefe talks volubly about his plans.

He has a lusty and husky new son, Anthony, and the first-born, Michael, is thriving, too . . . Papa O'Keefe loathes the name Walter . . . Next Wednesday will mark his last appearance on the air until December 23, when a new program—just contracted—will ooze over the ether under his command from Hollywood . . .

But he'll make a last public appearance in America (before sailing with the family for five weeks in Europe) next Saturday at the Washington Press Club dinner . . . And that was the reason for his trip to Boston, and his huddle with Partner Bobby . . . Walter thought up a new lyric to sing for the press and it's entitled "What's the Difference if the Missus Isn't Home" . . . Maestro Dolan was writing the tune at high speed so that O'Keefe could be ferried back to Greenwich, Ct., in time to kiss the kids goodnight.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Harvest days in the tax-abatement racket—the last two months of a city administration—are upon us . . . A State Street auditor, who is not a lawyer but who has had hundreds of "cases" appealed to the State Board of Tax Appeals, is ready to get richer . . .

* * *

These "cases," strangely, seldom reach the hearing stage . . . They are settled—at varying splits up to fifty per cent between the influential auditor and his "clients" . . . Although there is little that Mayor-elect Tobin can do about it—unless he screams to city-editors—the young victor of the last campaign might ask that consideration be given him by postponing the settlement of abatements until after his induction into office . . . His burden is going to be tough enough as it is without diverting additional hundreds of thousands of dollars from the city treasury . . . And "hundreds of thousands" isn't an exaggeration . . . Not so many outgoing administrations ago, millions in abatements were granted or "settled" after the municipal election.

* * *

Police Skipper Matthew Killen of Jamaica Plain Station went on the air Election Day over the two-way radio with an oration on his respect and admiration for one of the deputy superintendents . . . Listeners who didn't realize at first that the popular skipper was unaware that he was "on the air" publicly got a boot out of his disregard for censorship . . . James Lane, who plays the blunt-spoken director in "Room Service" is the "long-run champ" of Broadway contemporary actors . . . The Lambs Club have honored him with a scroll, probably inspired by the members who are constantly "at liberty" . . . Lane's record is 1932 performances in New York alone . . . He served his longest stretch in "Lightnin'" . . .

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 8—Clark Gable may not know it, but he is holding up David Selznick's new contract in New York.

David doesn't dare film "Gone With the Wind" without Clark, who has been unanimously selected by the public for the role of Rhett Butler. But M-G-M won't lend Gable unless young Selznick moves in as a producer. Inability to get Gable if Selznick joins Paramount is the one thing that is holding up negotiations with that studio.

Louella O Parsons

This is not the first time an actor has motivated a big deal. Some years ago when Jack Gilbert was at his height, William Fox agreed to buy a big block of Loew's Incorporated stock if Gilbert signed a new contract. He did and at a figure never before equalled in Hollywood's fantastic history.

Helen Hayes, so rumor says, has been approached by Selznick to play Melanie but it's my guess she won't accept and that Janet Gaynor will step into the role.

Deanna Durbin always gets the pick of screen fathers. First she had Charlie Winninger, then Adolphe Menjou and now in "Mad About Music" she rates the charming Herbert Marshall who has just been signed for the top male role in the new Durbin picture.

Others set for the cast so far are Arthur Treacher the English comic and Christian Rub. The youthful Deanna will also have her first screen romance in this movie. Oh, it's not a real love story but the studio plans to feature her with a young lad about her own age in an innocuous puppy love sequence.

* * *

A check has been sent to I. A. R. Wylie by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for "Champion's Luck," a magazine yarn that took the fancy of the story department. It was purchased with Maureen O'Sullivan and Jimmie Stewart in mind, and we are inclined to believe this may be another British movie, since the background is verra verra English.

* * *

Ripples about Fannie Hurst's new novel, "Unfinished Madonna," are heard in Hollywood where the competition for books, plays and scenarios grows and grows. Fannie finishes her book next week, at which time it will be sent to Rosalie Stewart and submitted to three waiting producers who will read it with alacrity. The story is said to be her best since "Back Street."

* * *

Chatter in Hollywood: Is there some organized kidding going on at RKO with queen Katie Hepburn the target—or what do you make of this? As usual the sound stage where Hepburn is working is plastered with signs reading "Keep Out" and "This set is closed."

Right next door is the Sally Eilers-Preston Foster-Christy Cabanne company with the following legend on the stage door: "Visitors welcome—but we can't talk much." Then right across from them is the Lew Landers set with the sign "All overflow from Cabanne set welcome—but we can talk even less 'cause we're behind schedule."

* * *

Chit Chat: "Susan and God," one of New York's stage hits, has not yet been purchased by any of our producers but there is a strong rumor that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is trying to buy it for Norma Shearer. If the sale goes through, you may depend upon a change of title since the Hays office frowns on the use of the Deity's name.

Victor Schertzinger will have a rival for his director-composer honors. Will Jason will not only direct MGM's two-reeler "A Canary Comes Across" with Erik Rhodes and Virginia Grey, but he'll score the tunes . . . Ray Milland is sounding his a's getting ready to sing for the first time on the screen in "Jungle Lover." That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Join Sterling Stars' Parade to Boston

Marta Abba plays the Grand Duchess, leading role of "Tovarich," the Gilbert Miller production which opens its Boston run at the Shubert tonight.

Margaret Bannerman comes to the stage of the Boston Opera House on Saturday night as one of the stars of "Three Waltzes," new Shubert operetta.

New Howard Dance Star

'Peaches' Strange Starred in Clubs

"Peaches" Strange, who danced for Coronation visitors in one of London's smart nightclubs, tops the "Moulin Rouge" burlesque stage show at the Old Howard this week.

'Peaches' Strange

The cast of featured players includes Vic Plant, comedian, Billy Fields, eccentric comic, Gladys McCormack, dancer, the Three Lumatrix, Lillian Sisters, Sandra, Sam Gould, Sevon and West and Paula Lind.

On the screen, Errol Flynn and Olivia DeHavilland are co-starred in "Charge of the Light Brigade" and Paul Robeson is the star of "Sanders of the River."

Extra Copley Show Thursday

The mid-week matinee at the Shubert Copley Theater this week will be held on Thursday, Armistice Day. "Room Service," playing there, announces in its daily bulletin that William Mendrek, the stage manager, will sail for London, England, on the President Harding on Wednesday. He goes with the number one company, which Jack Waller is to present on the other side November 28 in association with George Abbott.

Succeeding Mendrek as stage manager of the Boston company of "Room Service" is Ralph Morehouse, last here in that capacity with "Brother Rat" and "Three Men on a Horse."

Comedy Tops Tremont Bill

The comedy hit, "Three Men on a Horse," with Frank McHugh and Joan Blondell, and "Nancy Steele Is Missing," featuring Victor McLaglen and Peter Lorre, are the attractions at Boston's Tremont theater and Medford's Square theater today and tomorrow.

Playbill For Week

OPENING TONIGHT

SHUBERT—"Tovarich," the Gilbert Miller comedy success, with Marta Abba, who created the grand duchess role on Broadway, and Rudolf Forster, in the featured roles. The title Jacques Deval has chosen for his play means "Comrade." The play, which had a year's run in New York, will be here for a limited engagement.

OPENING SATURDAY NIGHT

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—"Three Waltzes," new Shubert operetta with Margaret Bannerman.

CONTINUING

COLONIAL—Ed Wynn in "Hooray for What!" new musical comedy. Book by E. Y. Harburg, Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse. Music by Harold Ayers. Final week.

PLYMOUTH—"You Can't Take It With You," Pulitzer prize winner, written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman and produced by Sam H. Harris. It is a closeup on the daft home-life of the nice if nutty Sycamore family. Priestly Morrison and Ethel Wilson head the cast. Final week.

SHUBERT - COPLEY — "Room Service," George Abbott production that is still doing a hit business in New York.

Conchita Headliner

The South End, long defunct as far as stage shows are concerned, has decidedly come to life with the well peopled burlesque productions that Max Michaels is putting on at the Columbia.

Conchita

This astute manager likes to refer to his productions as "glorified burlesque."

The burlesque for this week is "Girls on Parade," with Conchita as the featured attraction. She is promised as a revelation and a sensation.

Gala Bill at Gayety

New Gayety Theater has assembled a large and popular cast of performers for its holiday-week stage show.

In all, there will be seven headline vaudeville acts, including Monte Wolfe, master of ceremonies, Jones and Ray, Ann St. George and Company, Three O'Hea Sisters, Brown and Rice, Betty and Bob, Darrow and Costa and Al Greene's Variety Stage Band.

Harriet Miller to Make Debut At Algonquin Club Tea

By BETTY ALDEN

THE HUSTLE and bustle of getting to morning chapel on time, and scooting across the Vassar campus to lectures, will not be in it with the pace which Harriet Miller will set as soon as she returns home the day before the Harvard-Yale game . . . for after a busy week-end attending the game and all the festivities that go with it, she will return to Vassar for a couple of days, and then come home for Thanksgiving and her own debut party . . .

MRS. VINCENT LAMB

Harriet, who is the daughter of Mrs. Clarence Crossman Miller of Winchester, will be presented by her mother at a tea dance at the Algonquin Club on Friday, November 26, the day after Thanksgiving . . .

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert H. Miller (Margaret Emerson) and the latter's two sisters, Rosamond and Bunty Emerson, will be among the pourers at the tea dance . . . and their assistants will be Lee Hyde, Noel Smyth, Natalie Kellogg, Jean Thompson, Peggy Green, Catherine Kennedy and Beth Moir, another Vassar debutante, who will be presented to society the Thanksgiving week-end . . . Hers will be a tea at The Country Club on Saturday, November 27 . . .

Ann Gould and Mary Teaslee, classmates of Miss Miller's at Vassar, will be her house guests for the week-end and will also be among the pourers . . .

Philip Miller, the debutante's brother, who is a student at Harvard, will head the corps of ushers and his assistants will be Henry S. Stone, John C. Devlin, Stanley R. Miller, Harry Locke, John C. Allen, John Dwinell, Samuel Payson, Mark S. Hough, Richard Miller, Francis Neall, Secor Browne and Sheldon Ware . . .

Miss Miller is a graduate of the Brimmer School and spent the past summer travelling in Europe with her mother . . . She is a direct descendant of Joseph Jenkes, first colonial governor of Rhode Island . . .

Nancy Sears, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Sears of Chestnut Hill, has changed the plans for her coming out party . . . and instead of making her bow at a tea dance on December 3, she will greet her sister debs at a luncheon four days later, December 7, at the Ritz-Carlton . . .

Phillips-Bird Reception at East Walpole

ENDEAN, the beautiful ancestral home of the Bird family in East Walpole, will once again ring with toasts to a bride and bridegroom, this coming Thursday when Mary Reynolds Bird becomes the bride of Walter M. Phillips and takes him back to her grandmother Bird's home for the reception . . . Endean is presided over by its distinguished mistress, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, and there have been many wedding celebrations within its majestic halls . . . Among the many parties being given in honor of this week's bridal couple will be a small dinner dance at Endean the evening before the wedding . . .

* * *

Mrs. Whiting Willauer's experience in arranging lectures along literary lines at the Junior League, will serve her in good stead this afternoon when she meets John P. Marquand, author of The Late George Appley, the story about Boston society which gained so much fame about a year ago . . . to say nothing of H. G. Wells and Oliver La Farge, and a number of other authors who will be guests at a cocktail party given this afternoon by Luther Grimes in the cocktail lounge of the Somerset Hotel . . .

Mr. and Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Colonel Walter M. Pratt, Professor and Mrs. Robert Hillyer, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Reuter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fuller and Miss Betty Swift, the Junior League Librarian, are others who will be present to meet the authors . . .

Birthday Party for Mrs. Vincent Lamb

FOR MOST of the West Point cadets who visited the various dancing places in Boston after the football game Saturday, it was a nip and tuck race to see which came first . . . the end of the five dollars which they were given to spend . . . or the end of the evening when they had to hustle off to catch their special train . . .

But the non-military populace had an extra hour of grace before the good old Boston blue law, Saturday evening curfew rang and music and dancing had to stop . . . and even after the music stopped one party of twenty North Shorites in the Balinese Room of the Somerset sang chorus after chorus of Happy Birthday, which was the theme song of their birthday party for Mrs. Vincent Lamb (Pauline Agassiz Shaw) . . . Pauline's husband was a commissioned officer at West Point, a few years ago, before he began to practice law, so he had a double interest in all the celebrating after the game . . . Their fellow merrymakers had changed from their tweeds to dinner clothes after the final whistle at the Stadium and dined at Mrs. George Lee's on the Hill . . . Mrs. Lee is the grandmother of Marie Turner and Marian McKean, both of whom were in the party . . .

Marie's white velvet gown with long tight sleeves and a train, which she held over her arm while dancing, was a far cry from the rough mannish clothes she wears to practise her hobby of sled dog driving . . . she had a couple of small white gardenias on one side of her curls . . . Marian's gown combined a bright powder blue with bands of silver lame and her escort seemed to be "Sunny" Wigglesworth, . . . at any rate, he sat next to her, and other young men in the group included Benjamin Beale, Harold Whiteside, Abbott Fay and John Madden . . . Louise Howe wore a black gown with a full taffeta skirt and a moulded bodice of black velvet . . . Mrs. Lamb's gown was black with row upon row of narrow black fringe and a strand of pearls . . .

Entertain at the Towne Club

THE HENRY MITCHELLS 2D had a horseshoe table with their brother and sister-in-law, the Robert Mitchells, and Carleton Klinck, whom they good naturedly call "Sleepy Carl," and his girl . . . Carleton was an usher at the wedding of the Robert Mitchells (Janet Sawyer) a year and a half ago . . .

Over at the Towne Club a number of young married couples did a bit of post game celebrating . . . the N. Penrose Hallowells, Jr., had a table in one of the alcoves near the orchestra, with the Charles Cunninghams and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Batchelder . . . Mrs. Barthold Schlesinger had a ringside table with her husband, after attending the game . . . Their daughter, Anne Wicks, sailed yesterday on the Scythia for an extensive tour of Europe . . . And others in the gay throng were Mr. and Mrs. David Cheever, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Bigelow and the Richard Dows.

Better Luck for Harvard In Future Their Toast

ELEANOR VAN KLEECK JAMES POORE OSBOURN

THE HARVARD football team has not been very fortunate in the last couple of home games but that does stop Harvardians and their friends from doing a little after-game celebrating. Eleanor Van Kleeck, one of last season's debs, and James Poore Osbourn were photographed together at the Balinese Room of the Hotel Somerset the other evening as they were toasting the Harvard team and hoping for better luck to come. Miss Van Kleeck is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Van Kleeck of Brookline.

Book of the Week

"ASSIGNMENT IN UTOPIA"

Reviewed by Isaac Don Levine

The intelligent American who is still bewildered by the multitude of conflicting reports on Soviet Russia will find this book the best up-to-date guide to Communism.

If the Bolshevik myth still persists in our midst, it is in part due to the fact that most of the numerous books on the Russian revolution have been interpretations. But no amount of interpretation can translate the East to the West.

Eugene Lyons has given us the story of contemporary Russia in terms throbbing with human emotions. He caught the traits common to the Volga and the Mississippi and wove them into a personal history of universal dimensions.

* * *

Lyons spent six years in Soviet Russia as correspondent for the United Press. Before he received this assignment, he had been intimately identified with the Communist circles in the United States. He was the author of a crusading book on the Sacco-Vanzetti case in which he had been active. For four years prior to his departure for Moscow he was employed in the New York office of the TASS, the official news agency of the Soviet government.

Indeed, his appointment by the United Press to the post of Soviet correspondent had been approved beforehand by the Soviet government. He reveals:

"I only accepted the Moscow assignment from the United Press with Moscow's explicit permission. It was understood that I would use my strategic position for the cause."

That was at the end of 1927. Six years later Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, came to the United States to negotiate our recognition of the Soviet government. But he found time to transact other business. Writes Mr. Lyons:

"Litvinov and Umansky in America made peremptory demands (upon the United Press) that I be recalled. If I were not withdrawn peaceably, Litvinov stormed, his first act on returning to Moscow would be to expel me."

What a commentary on our independent press doing the will of the Kremlin in hiring and firing correspondents!

* * *

In the intervening six years the Pro-Soviet zealot, Eugene Lyons, went through one of the most moving experiences given to man in our day. Russia to him was a wonderland as he approached the border. He fought stubbornly every fact which challenged his faith. Yet every day brought its shock. He sought light with passionate desire, but found nothing but darkness at every step.

The five-year plan, the terror, the mass famine, the appalling squalor, and above all the lies which are the bone and flesh of Soviet life are here represented in a series of graphic pictures as they first struck Mr. Lyons. The force which finally overwhelmed his fanatical devotion to Communism sweeps through these pages and overwhelms the reader.

* * *

The Utopia which emerges at the end of the book appears to be the first complete dehumanized society on earth.

Though terrifying, it is a brilliant story. Mr. Lyons has removed the enigma from the Soviet sphinx. And he has returned to America with a renewed faith in plain truth, justice, liberty, intellectual integrity and humaneness.

"Assignment in Utopia," by Eugene Lyons. Harcourt, Brace & Co., $3.50.

Aristos Opens Busy Month With Theater Party Tonight

Active Aristos surges to the fore again with several amusing affairs scheduled for the next fortnight.

Tonight they're all Plymouth Theater-bound to attend a benefit performance of "You Can't Take It With You." Yesterday they all chuckled at their amusing club meeting where James Higgins of Winthrop held forth with his entertaining program of stories, poems and reminiscences entitled "Newspaper Poet" at the Copley-Plaza.

LUNCHEON PLANNED

A week from Saturday, club members, past and present, and friends, old and new, will gather at Fusne's restaurant for luncheon at three o'clock.

For this evening's benefit performance, Mary Doyle and her twin sister, Agnes, are co-chairman of the affair. Reservations have already been made by Mrs. Edward McNamara, Mrs. Daniel J. Kane, Mrs. Walter Sprague and Mrs. Ralph Boynton.

Mildred Collins of Arlington, president of the group, will attend with a group of friends. Others planning to attend are Phyllis Pfroetzscher, Doris Kaulbeck, Mary Granahan, Winifred Walsh, Esther Shea, Agnes Mulcahey and Claire Roche.

FASHION PARADE

Numerous dinner parties have been planned before the show. Mrs. Thomas Griffin will be hostess at dinner at a downtown cafe and Kathleen and Margaret Donahue will also entertain their friends at dinner.

* * *

What variety creeps into the Junior Philomatheia program. A football dance entitled "Pigskin Parade" vies with plans for bowling and golfing groups in supplying the highlights of this month's schedule of events.

At yesterday's meeting at the chalet, Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, the much-travelled president of the junior group, discussed "How the Other Half Lives." The business meeting was followed by a musicale featuring Eileen Barrett, violinist, and her sister Esther, accompanist.

On Thanksgiving the group goes in for things collegiate and stages a dance, "Pigskin Parade," at the clubhouse. Virginia Fouhy, chairman, suggests making reservations early for the dance for only the first hundred couples will be admitted. Helping Virginia with arrangements for the frolic are Sabina Tynan, Joanna Bulger, Mary Hannan and Mary Snyder.

St. Elizabeth Guild Sale Tuesday

There'll be a lot of chance-taking by matrons intent on winning the permanent wave donated by the Ritz-Carlton beauty shoppe. Mrs. John C. Kiley will demonstrate to matrons the novelties of her streamlined carpet sweepers. Mrs. M. F. Foley will sell an English mug, souvenir of Duke of Windsor's reign—all of which is only a preview of the Guild of St. Elizabeth sale tomorrow at the Copley-Plaza.

Mrs. David Johnson, a past president, is directing the sale, assisting her is a corps of workers, Mrs. Joseph A. Barry, Jr., Alice Falvey, Mrs. Donald Falvey, Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Mrs. William Taylor and Mrs. Francis T. Jantzen.

Should Rich Wife Pay Man Alimony After Divorce?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should a divorced husband ever receive alimony? They sometimes do, you know. What do you think about it?

You see, alimony isn't always a racket. Sometimes, it is true, the demand for it is prompted by a passionate and perhaps natural desire, on the part of a wronged wife, to get even.

In any case, the underlying idea is that a woman's earning capacity is less than a man's; also that she is supposed to be responsible for the care of children and maintenance of a home for them.

But now and then the tables are turned, and in a way that makes us open our eyes a little.

Take, for instance, the case of the Elwin Elmer Popes, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Pope, a successful school teacher, has very little affinity for mops and egg-beaters. Mr. Pope, so far as the world of business is concerned, may perhaps not too unkindly be called unsuccessful. He has, however, a certain aptitude for the domestic arts.

What more natural, then, that the Popes should have decided to reverse the usual roles, Mrs. Pope going forth to work every morning, Mr. Pope conscientiously sticking to the oven and the sink. They have had no children.

A TOO ORDERLY LIFE?

But recently, after six years of marriage, Mrs. Pope wanted a change. It wasn't that Mr. Pope didn't keep the house clean, or that he didn't serve dinner on time. Can it be that she discovered a longing, not to be financially supported, but to be dominated, "treated rough," accused of flirting with other men, extravagantly petted and brutally tyrannized over?

Anyway, Mrs. Pope applied for a divorce and got it. Mr. Pope, homeless, workless, invoked the law in his own behalf. He asked for alimony. The law awarded it. Twenty-five dollars a month. Both litigants are reported satisfied.

Mrs. Pope would rather forfeit $25 monthly than continue her drearily unromantic marriage.

DO YOU AGREE?

But whatever may lie behind the smash-up of this marriage, I think Mr. Pope is entitled to his alimony, don't you?

Trained to domestic labor, unable to play with any profit to himself what is considered a masculine part in the world, the poor man's plight is precisely that of many untrained women who suddenly find themselves husbandless.

Alimony, in such a case, is a mere matter of humanity for the helpless, divorced husband—why not?

(Beatrice Fairfax broadcasts through WNAC each Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 2:15 p. m.)

Whiteman Swings To Normal Weight

By IDA JEAN KAIN

YOU have heard any number of versions of the Paul Whiteman reducing saga and you will be keenly interested in the final happy installment:

As a result of the famous orchestra leader's persistence in keeping his weight at normal—194 pounds for his six feet one inch of height and sizable frame—the insurance companies rate him a ten years' younger man.

Mr. Whiteman paid a high price for the weight that for years was almost a public legend. Insurance companies considered him a poor risk and, to offset the liability of his excessive weight, which hovered around 275 pounds, they drew up his policy as if he were 10 years older than his actual age.

Now that he is normal weight and apparently going to stay there, the penalty has been removed. He is expected to live 10 years longer than if he had not reduced. He is a good risk.

* * *

Mrs. Whiteman is as proud of this new lease on life accorded her husband as she is of the way he stuck to the program that brought his weight down—and she will tell you it was no picnic. "I think anyone who reduces a considerable amount of weight must have a marvelous will power," she says, "and deserves all the encouragement the rest of the family can give."

Although Mrs. Whiteman modestly disclaims any credit for the successful outcome of the Whiteman weight story, I am inclined to think that what some of you reducers need is someone like Margaret Whiteman in the background to cheer you along.

She never nagged at Paul Whiteman to get him to reduce and some days she admits she told him she thought he looked a little thinner even though the scales did not live up to her hopes.

* * *

It was Mrs. Whiteman who planned the menus, with first 5000, then 4000, and later 3250 calories daily, so that there was no drastic reduction in food, and if you are struggling to reduce a considerable amount of weight you might adopt this plan of gradually lowering the calorie intake instead of suddenly cutting yourself off from three hearty meals a day.

Another thing she did which was very wise. She encouraged her husband to take a cup of broth or fruit juice in the mid-afternoon when he became hungry, because "the downfall of most weight programs, I believe, is letting one's self get ravenous."

* * *

I have tried to tell you that you can eat and grow slim. Mrs. Whiteman can give a dinner party and keep her husband on his calorie allowance. "I can give people tons of food without any of it being fattening," she declares, and this calorie sense comes in handy, for whenever the scales climb two pounds the rhythm king takes his calories in diminuendo.

Send a large stamped and addressed envelope for the leaflets "Pointers to Slimness" and "Calorie Chart."

DICK OPPOSES SCHEME

CHAPTER 450

As I waited for Dicky's reply to my statement that I meant to draw against some of the money which Robert Savarin had left me in trust for Lillian, I suddenly knew what the old novelists meant when they told of someone "fairly holding his breath."

"I begin to see," Dickey ejaculated. "You've taken it into your silly noddle that if Samuel Brixton fails and Ronald has to quit college, Marion's happiness will receive a severe jolt."

"Well, wouldn't it?" I countered. "Look here! If you were a wealthy man, wouldn't you lend Samuel Brixton anything he needed to get on his feet again, not because of himself, or because you ever expected to see your money again, but because of Ronald and Carolyn and Marion?"

"I'd see my money again," Dicky said, with the sudden switching of a train of thought which is so characteristic of him. "Don't make any mistake about that. Brixton may have the instincts of a crook, but he's a clever money-getter. If anybody could work back to financial shelter again, he's the lad to do it."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," I said firmly, resolving to get the argument over as soon as possible. "For I have decided that Robert Savarin would approve my taking the fifteen thousand he wished me to have for my personal use, and ten thousand of the other fund, and lending it to Samuel Brixton to tide him over his present difficulties."

"What!" Dicky shouted. "Twenty-five thousand dollars on no security but a bankrupt's promise? Why, you're crazy! You won't do any such thing. I won't let you!"

"I'm sorry, Dicky," I retorted, "but how are you going to stop me?"

"There are lunacy commissions," Dicky said darkly.

Romantic Cosmetics

OLIVIA DeHAVILLAND symbolizes the first era of gracious living in America . . . In the fragile loveliness of complexion and fragrant personality that those long-ago ladies achieved by the use of toiletries and scents which find modern expression in an entirely new group of cosmetics!

Colonial Days Inspire Scent

By ARLINE GOULD

THOSE LONG-AGO ladies wove an indefinable spell of romance around themselves that most modern gals simply lack.

There must have been something there, to have a swain make the long trip around the Horn or to China via a slim clipper . . . and come back to the girl on the Colonial American coast, eternally unforgetting.

Transatlantic telephones and coast-to-coast flights don't keep memory half as green as they should, m'lass, and it's undoubtedly your own fault for being the forthright, unmysterious creature that you are today!

All this old loveliness is suggested in a brand new and enchanting line of cosmetics that are all haunted by a scent of "old spice," a faithful copy of colonial belles' favorite perfumery, rose leaves crushed with exotic spices. And they're truly a gift to yourself because they're all bottled in irresistibly charming copies of Stiegel glassware, or quaint Keepsake Boxes, "Bride's Boxes."

With Christmas coming on, we'd keep it in mind!

* * *

All the packages are "treasure type" covered in a veneer of real wood with a spray of flowers, primitive and gay, copied from the famous Caswell Carpet made in Vermont long, long ago.

There is a grand free lathering and sweetly scented soap, and a delicate bath powder.

You couldn't possibly pass up the toilet water in a reproduction of a Stiegel bottle with hand-painted colored designs fused onto the glass. It has a "Town Crier" or an "Early American Lady."

The perfume itself is particularly lovely. And the vanity box with it's cover primly lettered "Handsome is as Handsome Does" gets us . . .

If you wish to know where the fascinating "Early American" toiletries may be found, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

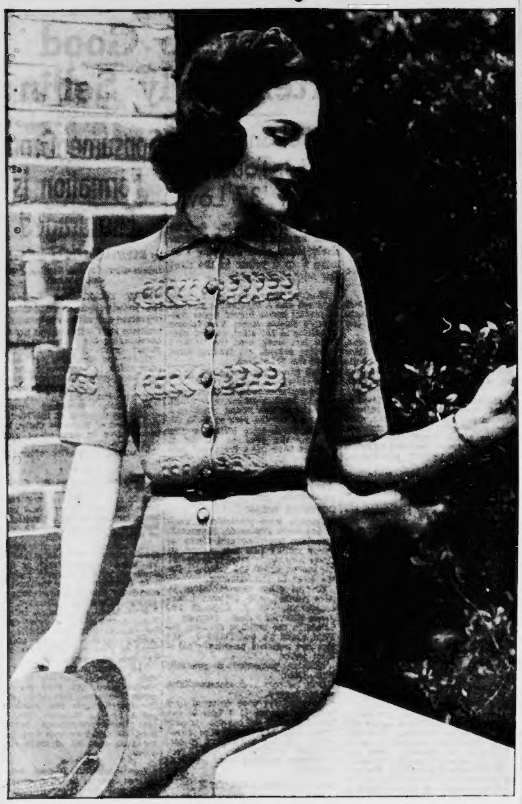
Knit Your Own Jacket Blouse



WITH SUITS occupying the fashion spotlight as they do this fall, it's no wonder a new blouse classification has arisen to aid and abet their glory! It is the jacket blouse, which is often as not a knit affair. Easy to slip into, with details that are always young and flattering, and emphasis on unusual effects are its earmarks. We've seen loads of nice ones around town, some imported from Vienna and very grand, but this is among the choicest! You can do a lot to give it a stirring style note by using unusual buttons, and our vote goes for the absolutely new handling of the cable-stitch motif—horizontally, like brandenburgs. And sleeve stripes, too! It's done in seed stitch, and owes allegiance to the always wearable shirtmaker. This is one of the advance guard of new knit fashions, and you may have knitting directions for it simply by writing to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, and inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"ALCATRAZ ISLAND"

By GEORGE LAIT

Novelized from the Crane Wilbur Story; a Cosmopolitan Production now showing at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters.

What Has Happened

In spite of a "deal" he made to plead guilty to income tax charges and accept a minor jail sentence, "Gat" Brower, "Public Enemy No. 1," was sentenced to five years, in addition to a heavy fine.

In jail awaiting transportation to the penitentiary, Brower is informed that his young daughter Ann is returning from Europe to aid him. Resigned to his fate, "Gat" exacts a promise from his sweetheart, Flo Allen, to look after Ann.

Flo tips off "Gat" that Red Carroll, a gangster with a grudge was responsible for his arrest and is threatening more trouble.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER 7

The following morning "Gat" Brower, erstwhile "Public Enemy No. 1," was unceremoniously prodded from his cell and, the United States Attorney General having so ordered, was started on the way to his place of confinement, the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Far different was this leave-taking of the ex-gang boss. There were no well-wishers to bid him au revoir today. There were just three men—"Gat," a Negro counterfeiter and a Deputy United States Marshal. "Gat" was handcuffed to the marshal's left hand. The Negro was handcuffed to "Gat's" left hand.

On the trip from the Federal house of detention to Grand Central Station, all three crowded in the seat of a taxi.

A BOND OF LOVE

Flo Allen and "Gat's" lawyer, McLane, wriggled their way through the crowds which jammed the pier to greet the arrival of the S. S. Normandie.

The dock was marked off in alphabetical sections to facilitate the claiming of baggage by passengers, and under the placard marked "B" the attorney and the little blonde discovered Ann.

It was the first meeting between the racketeer's daughter and his sweetheart, but their love for the same man and their common concern over his plight served as a womanly bond which transcended any need for lengthy introduction.

For just a moment they stood facing each other.

"You're Ann?"

"And you're Flo?"

And they were in each other's arms, sobbing.

RED CARROLL WATCHES

In the bustle and confusion on the pier, no one seemed to notice Red Carroll standing behind a pile of luggage.

From his vantage point he could see all that transpired under the "B" placard, and he seemed not at all pleased to discover Flo and McLane with Ann and her governess, Miss Tolliver.

He could not hear what was said by the members of the little group, but when McLane doffed his hat, bowed slightly to Ann and the governess, the hoodlum straightened up as if in anticipation of action.

Totally unaware that they were being scrutinized by this arch enemy of "Gat" Brower, Ann and Flo kissed each other good bye, Ann promising that as soon as she and Miss Tolliver had cleared their baggage through customs, they would come directly to the hotel suite which her father's friends had reserved for them.

Red Carroll smiled with satisfaction when he saw Flo and McLane leave.

Perhaps, after all, their appearance at the dock might be turned to an advantage—might simplify the execution of the crime he had planned.

For five minutes after Flo and the attorney had left, the mobster remained in his secluded hiding spot watching Ann and Miss Tolliver as they opened their trunks and handbags for the inspection of a customs officer.

Then he walked quickly forward.

"Are you Miss Brower?" he asked in a tone which seemed to the girl to be one of repressed excitement. She affirmed her identity, and Red, casting a furtive glance around, continued:

"I understood I could find Mr. McLane and Miss Allen with you. Where are they?"

THE PLAN WORKS

Ann explained that Flo and the attorney had been there, but were now on their way to a hotel uptown where she was to join them later.

Was there anything wrong?

Anything she could do?

The hoodlum drew her aside, out of hearing of Miss Tolliver and the customs officer, both of whom were thoroughly engrossed in the baggage inspection.

"Your father just escaped," Red whispered hoarsely into Ann's ear.

"He got away from the Feds while they were takin' him to Leavenworth.

"He sent me here to tip off Mr. McLane and Miss Allen and to—"

"Where is he?" Ann interrupted.

"I was jus' comin' to that, Miss. I was to tip off Mr. McLane and Miss Allen and tell them that they was to bring you over to him soon's they could.

"He don't want to stay in this neck of the woods any too long.

"Now if you'll tell me where I can telephone Mr. McLane—"

Again Ann broke in:

"We can't wait for that. They won't be at the hotel for half an hour yet.

"I'll go to him with you, and we can telephone to them later and they can join us."

Thus Ann played directly into the hands of her father's enemy, but she had no thought of treachery.

Quickly she informed Miss Tolliver that she was going to "keep an appointment" with a friend of her father's and ordered the governess to see the baggage to their hotel.

Five minutes later "Gat" Brower's daughter was speeding down New York's famous elevated highway toward the Holland tunnel in a taxicab.

At her side sat Red Carroll, the gangster who had helped send her father to prison.

Crop Fears Behind Dip In Cotton

Traders Wait Official U. S. Forecast Of '37 Crop

By BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—With the fourth official estimate of the season just ahead the cotton futures market again lapsed into depression last week as some trade authorities commented pessimistically on consumption prospects for an indicated record world production.

In the near delivery contracts prices dropped about $1.50 a bale, with December reaching a new low for the season, prior to a feeble rally at the week's close. In the distant positions the declines ranged from 75 to 80 cents a bale.

• • •

Private forecasters put out an array of figures covering their guesses of the crop reporting board's estimate to be released on November 8. They covered a considerable spread, but the majority appeared to believe the official prediction would top the October report which pointed to a crop of 17,573,000 bales. This would be close to a record.

Some considered 18,000,000 bales as a reasonable prediction, and a few were even higher. Meanwhile, in the face of virtual assurance of near-record outturn in both domestic and foreign staple, the trade had to ponder further reports of declining business activity coupled with ideas of some sizable contraction in purchasing power.

• • •

The market continued to absorb a considerable volume of hedge sales. Support appeared on the declines, but it was of limited scope, with speculative buying a negligible factor because of further general weakness through the commodity structure and resumption of decline in the stock market.

Comment on the apparent ineffectiveness of the government loan as a supporting influence in the market brought from one quarter the reminder that the loans do not touch the very large holdings of cotton in the hands of merchants and spinners, and also that they do not affect the market for foreign growths.

• • •

In primary cotton goods markets sellers reported a slow demand with a sagging tendency in prices of certain constructions in line with the fall in quotations for raw cotton.

United Gas Plan Is Completed

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 — United Gas Corporation, a subsidiary of Electric Power & Light Corporation, has completed a program of corporate simplification embarked upon five years ago. This has resulted in elimination of about 40 subsidiary or intermediate corporate entities, the latest step of which was the filing at Dover, Del., of a certificate of ownership certifying that United Gas Corporation had absorbed its subsidiary, United Gas Public Service Corporation.

While corporate simplification was one of the prime objectives of the long undertaking, an important aspect also was the development of a system that in its final form would facilitate the most satisfactory method of operation under the various state and federal regulatory bodies having authority over the varied phases of the system's business. The revised set-up of the United Gas Corporation has in mind also expansion of the federal government's field of regulation.

Intertype Profits Show Small Gain

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Report of Intertype Corp. for quarter ended Sept. 30, 1937, shows net profit of $91,827 after depreciation, federal income taxes, etc., equivalent after dividend requirements on 8 per cent and 6 per cent preferred stocks, to 33 cents a share on 221,612 shares of common stock. This compares with $85,474, or 30 cents a common share in preceding quarter and $83,996 or 29 cents a common share in September quarter of 1936.

For nine months ended Sept. 30, 1937, indicated net profit as compiled from company's quarterly reports was $303,900, equal to $1.11 a common share, against $275,799, or 96 cents a common share in first nine months of 1936.

Eccles Denies New Bank Bill Rumor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, denied that a banking bill to concentrate more authority in the Reserve Board is under preparation at his suggestion. The chairman issued the following statement:

"An article which appears in a widely circulated banking publication today states that a bill which would make the Federal Reserve Board the supreme policy-making, chartering and supervising authority for all banks in the country is now being written at the behest of Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. This statement is unqualifiedly untrue."

Australian Wool Goes to Continent

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 8 (AP)—Yorkshire and the continent were chief buyers at the wool sale today as 9390 bales were sold from 10,615 offered.

Offerings contained an average to good selection. Japanese buyers were inactive. The market was generally steady and unchanged, with best descriptions meeting strong demand. Faulty wools and cross-breds were irregular.

Stock Prices Stage Good Rally After Early Selling

Views of Leaders Studied by B. C. Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

High-ups in industry and finance are pessimistic.

And not without reason.

Stocks declined every day last week, the finish was quite weak, off half a dozen points from the previous Saturday.

Commodities also lost ground, wheat, corn, cotton, wool, hides all declined. Rubber continued its down slide, also copper, lead and tin. Gasoline dropped in the East.

• • •

Almost every industrial development was unfavorable, railway freight fell below a year ago, electric power production diminished, leading motor manufacturers have reduced output schedules, although they are not publicly proclaiming the fact.

Textile plants are curtailing. Lumber statistics are the reverse of cheerful. The steel industry is still in the doldrums.

Some advertising schedules are being modified.

Layoffs are occurring in not a few industrial centers.

While retail trade is pictured as still somewhat ahead of a year ago, it has lost its vigor.

Demand for bank loans is on the wane.

Europeans are withdrawing funds from this country because of fears that recession in securities, industry, trade will become more pronounced. Exports of gold are anticipated; while we could afford to supply other countries with many hundreds of millions of dollars, such a movement would not be indicative of foreign confidence in our prospects.

• • •

What is the trouble?

In a nutshell, men of affairs are not convinced that Washington will not act constructively. They dislike President Roosevelt's latest comment on taxation; they feel that he does not grasp the necessity for remedying either the penalties imposed on undistributed corporation profits or the levy on capital gains.

Their view is that the only sound method to alleviate the lot of the "ill fed, ill clothed, ill housed" is to bring about a greater measure of business confidence, enterprise employment. They reason that federal largesse must come to an end unless economic conditions are such that government will reap generous revenues. The trend is towards reduced government revenues.

• • •

This writer is hopeful that Congress will exhibit awareness of the disturbing drift and that it will oppose measures calculated to intensify apprehension and unemployment. The elections revealed that the high handedness of the CIO is resented by the people. They afforded grounds, also, for claims that the New Deal is losing some of its claims.

There is little likelihood that sentiment or security values will improve pending the opening of Congress.

The employing classes look to lawmakers rather than to President Roosevelt for helpful action.

Should they be dismally disappointed, there is no telling how far the relapse may go.

On the other hand, this writer believes that a change of front by Washington could precipitate a veritable panic among stock market bears and start a strong economic swing upward.

Fundamental conditions—monetary, agricultural, industrial—favor a strong forward movement rather than return to acute depression.

But you can never tell.

United Verde to Liquidate

A special meeting of stockholders of the United Verde Extension Mining Co. has been called for November 29 for the purpose of voting on dissolution of the company.

Statement of President Douglas, accompanying notice to stockholders says that the company's ore bodies are now practically exhausted and no future profitable ore bodies have been overlooked because of the exhaustive development work persistently carried on during the years of production.

Liquidation will be undertaken by disposing of marketable securities and paying dividends in liquidation as cash in the treasury may be available. It is expected that liquidation will be completed by December 31, 1939.

It is intended, after complying with all legal formalities to pay $2 a share on or before December 20, 1937. After making this distribution there will be in the treasury about $500,000 in cash and twice that amount in marketable securities based on present market price.

Holders of at least two-thirds of the stock must approve plan of liquidation before it becomes effective.

Steel Snaps Up After Touching New '37 Low

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—The stock market recovered impressively today after dropping 1 to more than 3 points in the first few minutes of trading.

Most of the initial losses were regained and a substantial number of pivotal issues moved above Saturday's closing levels. The volume of selling at the start, carried over from last week, sent the ticker 2 minutes behind, but trading dried up as the list rallied.

Wall Street attributed the snapback chiefly to technical factors.

The dollar showed further weakness in foreign exchange dealings, with the British pound reaching a new high for the year at $5.03.

U. S. Steel, after hitting a new low for the year at 51, off 2, snapped back for a fractional gain to above 53. Bethlehem turned a minus sign of 1½ points into a small advance. General Motors changed a fractional loss into an equal gain.

COPPERS WEAK

Coppers were particularly weak at the start, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco hitting new low ground on losses running to more than a point. All moved above the previous finish later in the forenoon.

Several other representative issues reached new bottoms before recovering. U. S. Gypsum and Johns-Manville each dropped 3 points in the building division, duPont about 2½ and Deere 2. The last two regained practically all of their losses.

Utilities presented a generally firm front.

Oils, rubbers and merchandising shares lagged.

Commodities were featured by a break of almost $1 a bale in cotton following a bearish government crop report. Grains eased, wheat slipping more than a cent a bushel at Chicago.

Foreign markets were generally sluggish.

STEEL NEWS IMPROVES

The magazine "Steel" stressed the point that the downward movement in this industry is becoming less precipitate.

It was noted considerable inquiry is current for pig iron and steel for export, but offered prices have been so far below the market, producers were not interested. In the third quarter, export tonnage, excluding scap, reached the highest total for that period since 1929.

Attention was also drawn to the figures of the Department of Commerce disclosing iron and steel imports other than scrap in September were smaller in volume that for any month since March, 1935.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions sterling was up 2⅛ cents at $5.02⅝. The French franc was .01½ of a cent higher at 3.41⅛ cents.

TBA Warned on 'Unsocial' Rating

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 8 (AP)—Members of the Investment Bankers Association of America closed their convention and went home today urged by their new president to "take care that our organization is not put in the category of being an unsocial animal."

The bankers, who adopted a resolution finding the present slump in the markets partly attributable to Federal tax laws, urged repeal or substantial modification of the capital gains and undivided profits taxes and chose silver-haired, 65-year-old Francis E. Frothingham of Boston for their president.

"We must recognize the changed temper of the times," counseled Frothingham, continuing, "We must realize the public feeling that abuses have crept into some phases of our business."

Committees of the association issued reports urging modification of what they termed the "hostile" attitude of government toward the public utilities and asking that steps be taken to improve the financial condition of the nation's railroads.

Some "best minds," asserted Morris R. Tremaine, comptroller of the State of New York, believe the capital loss and gains tax and the undistributed profits tax "do retard industrial and commercial activity, and they certainly do keep the credit reservoirs closed.

"These same men," he continued, "believe if we keep the credit reservoirs closed, and continue the high taxes of the present type that are inequitably distributed, it will be years before we can find private employment for the one-third of our people who are called underprivileged, for the reason that we can only finance new enterprises on a pay-as-you-go plan, growing slowly because the accumulation of earnings would be small."

Gold Fund Increase

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Treasury's inactive gold fund stood at $1,272,394,024 November 5, up $86,000 over the previous day.

Consumer Group Formation Is Encouraged

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—Sensing the growing power nationally of organized and articulate consumers, business groups themselves are now encouraging the formation of consumer organizations.

Under the New Deal, increasing recognition to consumers' interests has been given in special groups set up at various times in connection with the NRA and the AAA.

Meantime, voluntary groups, under the auspices of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, have been active in demanding proper representations by retailers as to the nature of fabrics offered for sale.

• • •

Likewise, consumer advisory groups, such as Consumers' Research and the Consumers' Union, have had rapid growth, and in the main have been highly critical of business practices and especially of advertising methods.

The newest turn is the plan to create consumers groups that will be more "constructive" in their dealings with organized business.

In response to the insistent demand by the women's clubs for better fabric identification, the federal trade commission recently brought out a set of rules applying especially to merchandise containing rayon. The new requirement is that full disclosure must be made of rayon content.

The women's clubs wanted the code to apply generally to fabric identification, but thus far only rayon is involved. Instead of taking the specifications and rules proposed by the industry, the federal trade commission departed from its usual custom and interposed its own set of trade standards.

• • •

Incidentally, the new set of rulings creates a new merchandising and advertising opportunity. Instead of "confessing" that a garment contains part rayon, merchants ought through truth telling about rayon seek to make it glamorous in the consumer's eyes. Rayon is merely one example of the effort of human intelligence, working in the laboratory through science and invention, to compete with nature. In this case synthetic products undertake to supplant the lowly silk worm.

Consumers are of course not a distinct class, but are producers, or workers, in another aspect. Consumers can pretty well take care of themselves, if the 31,000,000 Americans, subject to gainful employment, are at work on a basis of balanced income relationships.

• • •

Producers, or workers, are consuming even during periods of productive employment. The worker, walking to his plant, in the role of consumer, is using up shoe leather. While sitting at a machine, he, as a consumer, is wearing out the seat of his pants. Moreover, he gets the energy, which he converts into work, by eating as a consumer.

Thus propagandist efforts to create the illusion that consumers are a class apart are without merit.

No small groups are needed to emphasize the power of the consumer, who exercises his ballot each day by diverting his purchasing power to favored products and withholding it from others.

Whenever the consumer en masse dislikes a product or a merchandising method, he can put the company out of business by refusing to patronize it.

Accordingly, the principal need is for fact-finding organizations, which will give consumers information on which to make intelligent decisions. Each day plebiscites are held in the marts of trade to determine the shifting whims of sovereign consumers.

Good Orders for Steel Placed

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8 (AP)—An order for 45,000 tons of structurals and bearing piling placed by the Ford Motor Co. last week for a new press shop made up part of some 200,000 tons of new business in prospect for the steel industry, the magazine Steel said today, in the face of further decline in production.

The order was said to be the largest ever placed for that class of material.

This order, divided among mills in the Pittsburgh district, was part of 200,000 tons of new business developed for the steel industry during the week, the magazine said.

An inquiry for 75,000 tons of steel rails for the Southern Pacific Railroad was received, and bids are to be opened Dec. 10 for about 79,000 tons of steel for the extension of Coulee dam.

Action of Market Reviewed By Haney

Decline Seen as Threat To Social and Money Planning Schemes

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The composite averages of the stock market showed declines on every one of the five days during which the New York Stock Exchange was open last week. The losses in the composite averages ran from 4½ points up to 9 points, depending upon the proportion of high-priced issues in the average.

Bonds also reacted rather sharply, and toward the end the government bond market joined in the general weakness.

PLANNERS ON SPOT

This last fact is to be emphasized. The social planners and money managers will not try to laugh off any decline in government credit. They may dismiss the destruction of corporate credit and private profits as being "speculation," but when the basis for their own operations is threatened we may expect them to show more concern.

Similarly, the fact that the decline of the dollar in foreign exchange gained a place in the headline news is to be noted. In this connection we learned that the United States has recently been losing a little gold on balance.

This reversal of conditions is pretty sure to cause a change in attitude in Washington. It emphasizes the extent to which deflation has got under way and it will influence government action in many ways, most of which will probably tend to bolster the stock market.

Probably much the same crowd which last Spring were busily spreading rumors about a cut in the government's price for gold, are now working the rumor mill to create talk of a rise in the price, or further "devaluation."

In neither case have the rumors made much sense, but probably the current rumor is the most nonsensical of the two. At the present time funds are doubtless being withdrawn from our markets by foreigners, but that is not because they fear further devaluation here in any near future.

* * *

UPWARD THRUST FAILS

The action of the stock market is none too encouraging. The upward thrust on Friday was a failure and the volume picked up on Saturday's weakness.

In fact, the most active stocks all declined last week, including steels, motors and metals, especially.

Business news as yet shows little that is bullish. Last week the prices of copper and lead were cut and curtailment in steel and motor production was reported.

A majority of stocks traded in showed losses each day but Friday and a large number made new low closing prices.

The withdrawal and repatriation of foreign funds is doubtless a source of weakness here.

For these and other reasons, we cannot be entirely sure that further declines may not be seen. Caution in making new commitments is still to be observed.

LOWS MAY HOLD

But it is still easily possible that the low prices of October 19 will not be broken, in which event, a much better rally than any yet seen could be expected. (The Saturday close was 4 to 5 points above the October 19 low, according to composite averages.)

It is worth noting that the total volume last week was but a little more than half that of the week before.

I set little of the lack of bids which was so prevalent a while back, and it is hard to believe that most of the necessitous selling was not cleaned out last month.

And I believe that it is getting near the time when the President will want to do something to restore both government credit and business confidence. This could bring a sharp rally and nobody knows that better than the "bears."

Railroads Slash Soft Coal Rate

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—Northern railroads have agreed to slash their freight rates on soft coal from Pennsylvania to New England, guaranteeing an increase of 1,000,000 tons annually to the state's vast bituminous fields, it was officially disclosed today.

The announcement was made by Richard J. Beamish, member of the public utility commission, who directed the two-year fight to bring the rates down to a level with those from the southern fields.

Beamish said that while no definite date had been set for the rate cut, he had been assured the reduction would come within a very short time.

The commissioner explained that the railroads have notified Governor George H. Earle of their intention of making the cut to permit Pennsylvania operators to compete with producers of Virginia and West Virginia.

Heavy Selling Hits Dollar

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Under heavy continental selling the dollar today slumped more than 2 cents from Saturday's low [illegible] $5.00⅝ to the pound sterling from $5.02 3-16.

The sales were attributed to continental fear that a new devaluation of the dollar was imminent.

Financial interests were transferring their funds from the United States and investing in gold. They paid a premium of 34 cents over the dollar's parity for more than $5,000,000 worth of gold.

Weakness prevailed among American securities on the London stock exchange.

United States Steels declined [illegible] points to 51, Brazilian Traction [illegible] to 1[illegible], and International Nickels [illegible] to 4[illegible].

[illegible] and metal shares weakened on continental selling.

London Heeds Roosevelt Plea

Trade Pact Haste Is Urged by Paper

LONDON, Nov. 8 (I.N.S.)—Responding to President Roosevelt's nudge the Times today urged the British government to hasten Anglo-American trade agreement negotiations.

Even if the treaty "accomplishes very little in actual increases of trade," the Times said, it "may well begin a new process of co-operation that will prove of endless benefit to both countries and the world."

"The main difficulty," the Times said, however, "is that some of the concessions most desired by the Americans would be at the expense of the Dominions."

The market situation is still uncertain with both investors and traders reluctant to assume a constructive attitude toward equities, pending developments in Washington.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

In the absence of inflationary or other stimulus, therefore, the extent of the trade drop may not be evidenced until after the turn of the year. [illegible] "gain" territory again there can be no resumption of important buying for the pull.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

So long as anticipation of favorable Washington developments is kept alive, swift rallies from temporary oversold conditions are to be expected. Subject to such rallies, however, the general trend still appears to point downward until such time as the fundamentals of the external situation take on a more promising color.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Students Reopen Row On Harvard Ambulance

Stating they had been treated with "the most gross injustice" by the Harvard Student Council, Harvard students Merwin K. Hart and Sidney Curtiss today renewed their attack on the Harvard Spanish ambulance committee.

"We charge," said Curtiss, "that the ambulance was used in a Communist parade in New York, contrary to the wishes of those who donated towards it, and we charge furthermore that the Student Council's subcommittee picked to investigate our accusations was unfair in considering the evidence we submitted."

The ambulance was bought last spring with money collected from [illegible] vision of Dr. Walter B. Cannon of the Harvard Medical School. [illegible]

"The American League against War and Fascism is a Communist organization," said Curtiss. "It was started by the Communist Internationale. And the Vice-President of the society is Earl Browder, head of the United States Communist party and Communist candidate for president of the United States.

"When we brought out the fact that the ambulance had been used in the New York parade of Communists, the Harvard Student Council appointed a committee to investigate our charges.

"This committee was unfairly constituted. When we submitted evidence that the use of the money collected was a possible violation of the Neutrality Act, the chairman of the committee, Wiley Mayne, didn't allow the committee to consider our evidence."

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

The recent death of Winthrop Ames ends the career of one of the few Bostonians who in the past generation have done important work in the American theater. Born of a wealthy family stemming from North Easton, a Harvard man, cultured and aristocratic, his love for the theater since his childhood led him away from the family business, eventually to New York.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

After his apprenticeship at the old Castle Square he was called to New York to take the directorship of the New Theater on Central Park West, later The Century, and now torn down, a directorship which had been refused by the famous English producer, Granville Barker, because the house was too large for the intimate plays he liked to do.

Ames had a few successful seasons there until the experiment was given up by its millionaire backers and the theater sold. Later he built his own playhouses, the Little Theater and the Booth and there produced for himself, his productions being always distinguished for taste, beauty and intelligence.

Memorable among them were "Snow White" with Marguerite Clark, Lawrence Housman's "Prunella" and his Gilbert and Sullivan productions of which "Iolanthe" was probably the finest. Of late years illness had prevented him from doing much active work.

* * *

Old Castle Square Theater Gave Fine Training

When Ames went to New York to produce at the New Theater among other plays "Strife," "Don," "The Blue Bird," "The School for Scandal" and many other classic and modern plays he had had the best training a man could have.

This was his several seasons at the Old Castle Square theater. This came between the days of the Castle Square Opera Company with James Murray and Clara Lane and the long series of productions made by John Craig and Mary Young under their own management.

It was when I was in college and I can speak with authority because most Saturday matinees saw me either perched high in the fifteen-cent seats of that almost perpendicular balcony or, more comfortably, down in the orchestra of what, until it was torn down, was the easiest, roomiest, most comfortable playhouse in Boston. It was shabby but it was grand!

John Craig and Lillian Lawrence played the leads at first and then Howell Hansel and another Lillian whose name I forget but who made a [illegible] hawk-eyed Cleopatra. I remember not the Shakespeare plays or Shaw's but that gorgeous old machine of Sardou's.

Many of the Castle Square people later went to New York and there made names for themselves too many to set down.

* * *

Faithful Audience Manager's Big Asset

It was a great training school for a manager. The assets were that he had a large and faithful audience that regularly repeated. This was before the days of the movies. The liabilities were that it was definitely a popular priced audience, housewives and students and such, with a dollar top and a fifteen-cent second balcony.

A kind of economy that must disguise itself was necessary. When the theater was finally torn down it was said that it possessed the best property room and scene equipment in Boston.

Ames had an ingenious and versatile repertory. He gave productions of Shakespeare which were surprisingly good, with scenery designed by the rising young architect Frank Chouteau Brown who even then had a hankering after the theater.

* * *

Always Person Apart From 'Broadway Type'

It was only a stock company of the stock company tradition but I always considered it one of the best run and most efficient theaters of that epoch.

Later Winthrop Ames did very beautiful [illegible] the exquisite "Prunella" and the charming "Snow White," but Archer's "Green Goddess" with George Arliss, "The Merchant of Venice" with the same star, and Leslie Howard in [illegible] 'Escape.' Not to mention [illegible] American Gilbert and Sullivan of our time.

He [illegible] "Broadway." He was a person apart from the Times Square producers. Tall, [illegible] faced, serious-looking, scholarly and distinguished, a man of impeccable taste and a real genius for production, his name should be remembered for years as a master of the art he first embraced for love and always practiced in the same spirit.

With one of the brightest interludes of song and nonsense ever to emanate from a local microphone Mac and Moore have developed an enormous following in New England.

Also comes "Grand Hotel" which made its debut in 1933 will return to the air (WBZ) this evening at 8:30. It replaces the "Vanity Fair" variety show.

"Second Honeymoon," a three act romantic comedy, has been selected as the first play to be presented on the new "Grand Hotel" series.

Sir Ernest MacMillan is scheduled to be guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra tonight (WBZ) at 9:00 p. m. The University of Pennsylvania Choral Society under the direction of Dr. Harl McDonald will sing as guest artists.

Frank Black plans to present Rimsky Korsakov's dashing "Caprice Espagnol" as an orchestral highlight on the Contented Hour [illegible] (WNAC) at 9:30 this evening. The concert orchestra with Dr. Black conducting played this selection on broadcast in a program a few months ago and the demand for its repetition has been insistent.

Half-Baked Analysis

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Most players are able to judge when to continue leading one suit and when to shift to another suit.

But, when it comes to selecting the precise card to be played, their ideas are unfortunately sometimes foggy.

Witness West's superficial analysis in today's hand:

West dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

North:
♠ A 7 6
♡ Q 8 3
◇ A K Q J 6 3
♣ Q

West:
♠ Q 10 5
♡ A J 9
◇ 8
♣ A K 9 7 5 2

East:
♠ 2
♡ K 5 4 2
◇ 10 7
♣ J 10 8 6 4 3

South:
♠ K J 9 8 4 3
♡ 10 7 6
◇ 9 5 4 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Dble.	4 ♣	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the club King and to his horror saw the declarer ruff. A low spade was led to the Ace and a spade returned. East showing out, declarer saw he could not avoid losing to the Queen, so he went up with the King and played a third round.

West on lead with the Queen had no problem of what suit to lead. Obviously a club continuation was out of the question since declarer would ruff and run the solid diamond suit.

On the other hand it can be explained later that the one chance to defeat four spades was to find East with both the King and ten of hearts. West cashed the heart Ace and then led the Jack through dummy's Queen. East also had the King with the ten and the defenders could take on two heart tricks and the spade already home.

West's analysis had been only half correct. True, East had the heart King [illegible] of course. But why did he need the ten? West himself had a combination that in this case was fully the equivalent of the A J 10.

Start Christmas Cake Right Away

FROM MARTHA LEE'S MONDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

Interested in some "Yum-Yum" dishes for the Yuletide season?

Of course, you are.

Christmas cakes should be baked this week if they're the type which improve in flavor as they age a bit.

JEWEL FRUIT CAKE

- 2 cups dried white figs
- 2 cups dried apricots
- 3 slices candied pineapple
- 1 cup sliced citron
- 1 cup sliced preserved orange peel
- ½ cup sliced preserved lemon peel
- 1 cup strained honey
- 1 cup halved candied cherries
- 2 cups coarsely chopped walnut kernels
- 1½ cups granulated sugar
- 1½ cups butter
- 6 eggs
- ½ cup orange juice
- 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons ginger
- 2 teaspoons mace
- 2 tablespoons brandy (optional)
- 2 teaspoons brandy extract

Rinse figs in hot water if very dry, boil 3 to 5 minutes, drain and dry on a towel. Clip stems and cut in thin slices. Rinse slices. Cut pineapple into strips. Combine figs, apricots, citron, peels, honey and mix thoroughly. Let stand overnight. Cream sugar and butter, add beaten eggs and mix. Add orange juice, flour sifted with soda, salt and spices and mix well. Add brandy, extract, nuts and fruits and peels and stir until fruits are well blended. Pour into a waxed paper lined pan filling nearly to the top. Bake in a slow oven 250 degrees for 4 to 4½ hours. Raise temperature to 275 degrees F. and continue baking about ½ hour.

BUTTERMILK FRUIT CAKE

- 1 cup butter
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 4 eggs
- 3½ cups flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- 1½ teaspoons soda
- 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
- 1½ teaspoons nutmeg
- 2 cups buttermilk
- ½ cup dates, quartered
- ½ cup sliced orange peel
- 1 slice candied pineapple
- 10 almond halves

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and the beaten eggs. Sift together 2⅔ cups of the flour, the baking powder, soda and spices and add alternately with the buttermilk to the first mixture. Mix the remaining flour with the fruits reserving candied pineapple, almond halves and ½ to 1 cup [illegible] halves. Add to the cake mixture, mix well and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into 3 small buttered pans lined with waxed paper or one large pan. Decorate top with small pieces of candied pineapple, almond halves and cherries. Bake for 1½ to 2½ hours depending upon size of cake in a moderate oven (350F.)

CHILDREN'S PLUM PUDDING

- ½ pound mixed dried fruits (prunes, apricots, figs)
- 1 package lemon or orange flavored gelatine
- ½ cup seedless raisins.

Cover the dried fruits with cold water, soak for several hours or overnight and then cook in the same water until tender. Drain the juice from the fruit and set it aside. Cut the fruit in small pieces. Add 1 cup of water to the raisins and simmer for five minutes to make them plump. Drain off the water and add it to the juice from the other fruits. Measure all the fruit juice and add to it enough water to make two cups of liquid. Bring this to the boiling point and dissolve the gelatine in it. Let the gelatin mixture stand in a cool place until it begins to stiffen and then stir the fruits into it. Turn the pudding into a mold and put it in a cold place to stiffen.

Wise Word to the Magazines About Sport Writing

AUSTEN LAKE

SOME QUAINT THINGS ARE BEING WRITTEN in the national magazines these autumn afternoons. One publication currently carries a purported statement from Joe Louis that Tommy Farr is "the dirtiest fighter," he ever met; that Farr repeatedly butted and thumbed; that Farr can't fight a lick. As a ringside witness with a sharp memory picture of that fight, Louis is wrong—if indeed he said such things—on all three counts.

Farr not only fought cleanly at long range—there was scarcely a clinch in the fifteen rounds, but he came within an ace of licking Louis. For a man who "can't fight a lick," he tagged Louis oftener than any man in the dusky youth's career, not excepting Schmeling, and if his punches had a little more steam he might have had Joe in another dreamy fog.

Another national publication prints a seasonal diatribe on college football with such generalizations as "Football is even dirtier than prize fighting," or " . . . entrance requirements in eight out of ten colleges, as far as good football players are concerned, are strictly phony," or " . . . it is considered good strategy on the part of opposing teams to put a good player out of action if they can," or "the system is rotten from top to bottom."

There are many legitimate gripes against college football, but these are irresponsible slurs of a mischievous mind. A scattering of colleges have convenient "back doors" for easy admittance to burley numskulls, but nine out of ten are academically honest. Nor, as a college football official of a dozen years experience, have I seen one (count 'em, not ONE) example of intentional dirty work, much less any effort to disable an opposing star. And finally, while there are some decayed spots in the varsity football systems, it is far from "rotten from top to bottom."

These pieces make entertaining reading, no doubt, and sell magazines. The reason is that few national magazines have a sports editor with a thorough background in athletic [illegible]. Fact vs. Fiction

HONEST AND ABLE CRITICISM OF SPORT ills—there are many—is one thing. Malicious generalizing, truth twisting and ignorance is another. In the first group of competent sport analysts come the recent magazine stories by George Trevor, John Kieran, Bill Corum, and Bob Considine—professional sport commentators who know their articles. In the latter come those by a conglomerate army who have nothing but articulate facility for slinging one little word after the other, a few disconnected facts and a quick imagination.

One recalls the ghosted story published by a U. S. weekly under Max Schmeling's name soon after he knocked out Louis, charging that the Negro had deliberately fouled him with low blows. Louis, amazingly, sued Schmeling for half a million dollars; not so much from outraged feelings as in the hope of blocking his return to these shores. And Schmeling repudiated the story, explaining that he had consented to an article under his name and had never seen any of the copy until Louis filed suit.

Joe Migdal of Chick Meehan's Manhattan team being brought down just short of the goal line by a Detroit player during gridiron thriller with Gus Dorais' Detroit Titans at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. Manhattan upset the invaders, winning 7 to 0. Detroit previously had beaten Boston College, 14 to 0.

Wehrli of Illinois is stopped by Kavatch of Northwestern in second period of game at Dyche Stadium, Evanston, Ill. Northwestern, victor over Michigan, Purdue and Wisconsin, was figured to roll over Bob Zuppke's eleven, but the Illini surprised by coming home in front, 7 to 0, and scrambling the Big Ten championship standings. Illinois previously had been beaten by Indiana and Michigan and had been tied by little De Paul.

Harvard Would Be Unbeaten, Untied If Fortune Had Been Kind—McKenney First to Sing Dick's Praises

By BILL GRIMES

We're in perfect accord with the general belief that the victors get the breaks, but we question the axiom that they make them.

For example: 'Navy had absolutely nothing to do with the two fumbles that cost Harvard a well deserved victory in Baltimore. Nor did Dartmouth cause it to rain a fortnight back in the Stadium and thereby rob the Crimson of its most effective plays.

In the Army game it was a case of cause and effect. Harvard caused the fumble and Army effected the recovery, which was converted into the deciding point.

Harvard is fully entitled to a few favorable breaks. The Crimson didn't get them against Navy, Dartmouth and Army or it might have been one of the few unbeaten, untied college elevens in the country.

NO "KNOCKERS" TODAY

For various and in some instances very obvious reasons Harvard seldom enjoyed the support of the general run of football enthusiasts in this sector until Dick Harlow went to Cambridge.

Due to the fact that Harvard has won only one major game in three seasons, it's startling to see the large number of new well wishers that are constantly swinging into line in support of Harlow.

It should be a "breeze" for any qualified coach to become nationally famous at any college or university where they "go out and get 'em."

To the best of our knowledge, there isn't a big time coach in the land working with more inadequate tools than Harlow. But we challenge any coach to produce a better functioning machine than Harlow has at Harvard.

RANKS WITH BEST

For all that he was most highly rated by Joe McKenney and Bill Ormsby, when they were matching Boston College elevens with those representing Western Maryland, Harlow was practically unknown to his current followers when he came to Harvard.

The usual cry went out when Harlow arrived at Cambridge.

"They've got to go out and get him some players or he'll never be able to pull Harvard out of its doldrums.'

Measured by major victories, the Crimson is still floundering around. But Harlow has taken what Harvard has offered him and molded a remarkable unit, one which is so cleverly constructed as to allow numerous replacements without affecting its efficiency.

Although a victory over Princeton is his only major game achievement, Harlow is rapidly gaining recognition as "tops" among the college football coaches. His accomplishments at Harvard have earned for him the honor of a rating with such immortals as Knute Rockne and "Pop" Warner.

In the event he is able to salvage enough players to go around, Harlow will make the sons of Eli Yale step at their best one week from Saturday to remain in the undefeated group.

Rhody Favorite In N. E. Run

Fred Tootell's Rhode Island State harriers are expected to retain their New England intercollegiate cross country championship against a field of 13 other institutions at Franklin Park this afternoon.

The Rhode Islanders are led by Billy Eckhart, who finished third last year. As Hawk Zamparelli of Northeastern, winner last year, has withdrawn from college, Eckhart is one of the favorites for the individual prize.

Don Smith of Maine, winner of the freshman race last year, is generally considered Eckhart's foremost rival.

Colleges with teams entered in the race are: Rhode Island State, Northeastern, Bates, Bowdoin, Holy Cross, Mass. State, Tech, Springfield, Tufts, Maine, New Hampshire, Wesleyan and Boston University.

Last year Rhode Island won the varsity championship with 82 points. New Hampshire won the freshman event with 37.

St. Anselms Beaten By St. Vincent

LATROBE, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—An alert guard tok advantage of a blocked punt and scored the winning points for St. Vincent's Bearcats in a hard-fought game with St. Anselms College here. The final score was 19 to 13.

The "breaks" came late in the fourth period, while the two teams were waging a punting duel with the score tied at 13 all. Deep in his own territory, McLean of St. Anselm tried to kick out and the ball was blocked.

It bounded goalward and the guard, Mataruski, grabbed it on the two-yard line and ran over for a touchdown.

A. A. U. Chiefs To Meet Here

400 Gather Saturday At Copley-Plaza

Some 400 leaders of amateur sports from all sections of the United States will attend the annual meeting of 31 national sport governing and standing committees of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States at the Copley Plaza Hotel next Saturday.

Most of these committees will meet at 1:30 p. m. and continue their deliberations throughout the day.

The basketball committee is the only one scheduled for an evening meeting, although it is more than likely that the work of several of the committees will carry their meetings well into the evening.

These committees will award the annual national championships of the union for 1938, pass upon the records made during the past year and prepare a report on the 55 amendments to the A. A. U. constitution, by-laws, general and Athletic rules which have been proposed, and pass their recommendations on the board of governors which meets November 15, for final approval.

Applications for one or more national championship fixtures are on file from practically every large city in the United States.

ZANNELLI EXPECTS KAYO WIN OVER PACHO AT GARDEN

He'll be giving away large chunks in the important matters of weight and experience, and it looks like the first defeat on his record since he turned pro., but Ralph "Zoom" Zannelli expects to win by a knockout over busy Bobby Pacho, Los Angeles, in the headline 10-round fight of the Goodwin A. C. boxing show next Friday night at the Boston Garden.

Zannelli has piled up a spectacular record since joining the pros, winning 22 of 23 fights and getting one draw.

Pacho will be a favorite to wreck this streak when the Mexican whirlwind and the Providence Powerhouse climb through the ropes for what looms as a sparkling fight.

Zannelli, a bit off in his last start although he got the decision, is feeling and looking like a million in workouts at Kelley & Hayes gym.

Experts who have seen him blasting sparring partners around and about think Zannelli will stop Pacho, 26-year-old veteran who has fought such as Sammy Fuller, Tony Canzoneri, Cleto Locatelli, Wesley Ramey, Barney Ross and Pedro Montanez.

"I learned plenty in my last fight (with Young Peter Jackson) and it was the kind of a fight I needed," said Zannelli today as he showered after a sizzling workout.

"I had Jackson on the deck and should have knocked him out. The mistakes I made won't happen again.

"I've never felt better. Pacho may be good, but I'm going to win this one by a knockout."

A knockout victory over Pacho will boost Zannelli up with the top men in the welterweight division for Pacho is a nationally prominent leather-tossing merchant, ranked with the top in his division.

The rest of the Goodwin card is Joe Ricciotti, North End, vs. Paulie Walker, New York, semi-final, eight rounds; Pat Foley, Worcester, vs. Mike Kaplan, Roxbury, special bout, eight rounds; Salvatore Bartolo, East Boston, vs. Newsboy Eddie Haas, Worcester, six rounds; Joe Piasta, Worcester vs. Frank Dolinski, Providence, six rounds.

Penn Wolves Howl for Harman's Scalp

By MURRAY KRAMER

Another week-end of college football is over. There were upsets, it is true, but on the whole it was the least startling of any of the past six Saturdays.

Fritz Crisler

That old, old football adage that they payoff in touchdowns was never more truly exemplified than at the Stadium . . . Harvard ran that Army team up and down the field but lost, 7 to 6 . . . it just goes to show that often a better team leaves the field on the short end of the score . . . the game, though, cannot be considered an upset as it figured a tossup.

The other institutions locally, fared well . . . Boston College returned to the victory column at the expense of Western Maryland . . . Boston University toyed with American International . . . Northeastern wound up its season in grand style by beating Springfield . . . Tufts lost to New Hampshire, as was expected, but the 3-0 score was closer than many believed it would be.

About the only upset in New England last Saturday was Maine holding Bowdoin to a tie.

Throughout the East, the biggest upset was Penn, State beating Pennsylvania . . . this was never supposed to have happened and is apt to be quite serious . . . in fact the howl has started for Harvey Harman's job.

* * *

Detroit ran Manhattan all over the field, but a Titan fumble set the stage for a Jasper touchdown and an upset Manhattan victory resulted.

In the middle west, though, the Big Ten went through one of its daffiest days of the season . . . Illinois, after being licked by Michigan the week before, comes back and knocks a favored Northwestern team right out of the Big Ten running . . . Indiana upsets Ohio State, 10 to 0 . . . this is the first time the Buckeyes were beaten by more than a touchdown since Schmidt arrived at Columbus four years ago . . . Chicago, the doormat of the Big Ten, gave Michigan a hectic afternoon before the Wolverines won out 13 to 12.

Biff Jones is still directing an undefeated team in Nebraska, but the Cornhuskers had plenty of trouble in their unexpected 13-13 tie with Kansas.

The far West found the supposedly invincible California Bears being held to a scoreless tie by Washington . . . but the Bears had a bad afternoon coming and got it out of their systems . . . this tie leaves them undefeated and still the logical West Coast Rose Bowl team.

Perhaps the biggest upset of the day was Texas' victory over Baylor . . . Dana Bible, in his first year at Texas, has watched his eleven lose to everybody; in fact, his Longhorns were the Southwest cellar team . . . Baylor, on the other hand, has been the surprise team of the year and is leading the Conference, having beaten the best clubs in that section . . . now Texas knocks off Baylor . . . you figure it; we can't.

* * *

New England still has three undefeated major teams . . . Dartmouth spotted Princeton 9 points and then turned around and ran up 33 on the Crislermen . . . this was a very pleasant victory for the Green, which hadn't beaten the Tigers for years . . . Yale had its letdown after the Dartmouth game but still topped Brown by three touchdowns . . . Holy Cross had to come from behind to whip Colgate.

Biff Jones

Add Pittsburgh, Villanova, Fordham and Lafayette to the three undefeated New England teams, and you have the six leading colleges in the East.

Eagle Warriors Plan Glorious Windup

Looked Like New Team Against Terrors

By ED TOOMEY

Hopes of finishing the rest of the season without another defeat were held by the Boston College Eagles today as they arrived back home after trouncing the Western Maryland Terrors, 27-0, at Baltimore Saturday.

Saturday's exhibition was by far the best given by the Bostonians this season. A new, or at least different system, was unfolded by the Eagles against the Terrors.

Instead of the old off-tackle smashes that have been laying men out on the side lines, the Eagles broke loose with a wide open game featuring laterals and passes.

To Gintoff's stellar exhibition of ball-carrying which resulted in touchdowns for the Eagles, was the big hit of the game. Gintoff had been a substantial yard gainer all year but in this game he outdid himself.

Captain Tony DiNatale, Felix Gintoff, [illegible] and in fact the whole Eagle backfield including the reserves played their best brand of football in the battle.

The result of the game means a lot to the Eagles, for if they had lost their hopes of a successful season would have been blasted to bits.

If the Eagles can take Kentucky, Boston University and Holy Cross in the next three weeks, the midseason setbacks handed them by Detroit and North Carolina State will become but memories, and if they show that same brand of clever football displayed in Baltimore, three wins will be the result.

Terriers Bent On Upsetting Villanova

Mainliners Unbeaten, Scored on Only Once

Boston University makes its first bid for national football fame Thursday afternoon when it battles the undefeated Villanova eleven at Fenway Park.

The Pennsylvania Main Liners, fresh from successive triumphs over Manhattan, Detroit and Marquette and scored on all season only by Marquette, shape up as one of the strongest teams in the East and will be favored to win.

Last year in Philadelphia, Villanova got the jump on the Terriers and rolled up three fast touchdowns. In the last half, though, with the Main Liners still keeping their first team in, the Hanleymen had a slight edge if anything.

On the basis of that battle, the Terriers have a chance to come through with a real upset Thursday. Still remembering that this was the only game they lost last year, the Terriers have been pointing for Villanova all fall.

It was because of the Villanova game that American International was scheduled for a "breather" last Saturday. Coach Pat Hanley allowed his regulars to play only twenty minutes, and every one of his first crew is fit and ready for the holiday tilt.

During those twenty minutes of action, the regulars ran up three touchdowns and looked so impressive that Doc Jacobs, Villanova's freshman coach who was scouting the clash, said mournfully.

"Brother, we are in for a real ball game Thursday."

Terrier rooters conceded that Andy Stopper and Art Raimo of Villanova are great backs but they point with pride to Gary Famiglietti, Solly Nechtem and Lou Blaszynski. This trio has won the praise of every opposing coach and scout who has seen them in action this year.

There will be practice for the Terriers today. The usual Monday day off has been cancelled because of the fact that last Saturday's game was not too tough.

The only serious injury last Saturday came when Bobby Colburn got his signals mixed and went crashing into Rotman with the result that Rotman had his nose broken.

Shamrocks, 59-0, In Farewell Game

The Shamrocks said good-bye to Boston for 1937 in impressive fashion by rollicking to a 59-0 victory over the College All-Stars at Fenway Park.

The Kennallymen rolled up three touchdowns in the first period and toyed with Lew Elverson's eleven for the rest of the afternoon.

It was probably just as well that this game was the last here because Boston's fandom has just refused to turnout. In fact the total attendance was less than 1000.

Dazzler Pines for Referee Who Will Let Him 'Open Up'

Clark Promises to Put Robert in Hospital

Gabby George (Dazzler) Clark, the Scotchman, reticent of late, went on the soap box this morning.

"So that Robert is going to make mince meat out of me, eh?" commented the Scotchman. "That's what he thinks. Doesn't he know I am the greatest wrestler in the world?

"Bowser has announced it will be a two falls out of three contest, which doesn't mean anything. It will be a one-fall affair.

"I will muss that Frenchman up so badly that he will not be able to come back for a second fall. In fact, he'll become acquainted with one of Boston's hospitals that night.

"All I want is a referee who will let me really open up on Robert. I'm going to smear his handsome features."

CLARK'S RECORD

Robert and Clark collide in a battle for the world heavyweight wrestling championship, now held by Robert, Wednesday night at Boston Garden.

This battle will carry two very ill-tempered young men into action. Bad feeling between the pair developed last summer, when Robert accepted a bout with Clark, trained two days and then pulled out.

Heat was added a few days ago when Robert again tried to refuse to wrestle the Scotchman but was forced to go through with it by the American Wrestling Association.

Clark, as cocky a young man as has been around wrestling hot spots, has an admirable record. He has compiled a long list of victories in the little more than a year he has been in America. Prior to his arrival here, he defeated many of Europe's topnotch matmen.

WESTENBERG VS. BARTUSH

Another bout on the program which is attracting a lot of interest is the semifinal, in which will be Marvin Westenberg, barefooted Tacoma, Wash., matman, and Billy Bartush, rugged Chicagoan.

Jesse James, handsome Greek athlete and rated a greater wrestler than Jimmy Londos, will appear in a prelim. So will Maurice Robert, brother of the champion.

One Face Yvon Can't Forget

Yvon Robert was unable to dodge Dazzler Clark even at his retreat in the Canadian woods where he found a photo of Clark pinned to a tree while out hunting. Robert has finally been forced to defend his title against the Scotchman and is now in serious training for the big clash.

Dick Harlow Has Magic as Coach

By JACK CONWAY

DICK HARLOW of Harvard proved himself one of the great football coaches of the country when his Crimson eleven, with second and third string players in its line-up, was only beaten by a 7 to 6 score in its game with the Army.

Army had its full playing strength in the field, and was fortunate to squeeze out a one point victory over Harvard.

Mr. Boston

I give Harlow most of the credit for the improved playing of the Harvard eleven. I know if I were to ask him why his team has done so well this season he would tell me it was the result of having plenty of first class material.

Other than Struck and Green, Harvard has not any stars. It is a team of average, well coached youngsters who have faith in their coach and in their own ability to master his teachings.

This was proved conclusively in the Army game when a second string backfield started the game. You could not have asked for a better attack than it displayed in its drive for a touchdown in the early part of the first period.

I do not intend to join the ranks of the Monday morning quarterbacks, who now can so easily show how even a weakened Harvard team could have won.

I thought Harvard played a grand game, and looked magnificent even in defeat. The players carried out their assignments and played the game to the utmost of their ability.

Only a break in the game enabled Army to score. A poor deal from fate was all that deprived Harvard of the extra point after touchdown which would have given it a tie.

You have not heard any alibis from Dick Harlow. He is mighty proud of his Harvard team, and is looking forward with confidence to the clash with Yale a week from next Saturday.

I asked an Army man who has followed Yale closely this year who would win the Harvard-Yale game.

"Harvard," was his quick reply. "We were lucky to beat the Crimson in the Stadium. Harvard will be stronger against Yale. It will succeed in stopping Clint Frank."

Dick Harlow isn't doing any predicting. He is patiently building for his team's objective game, confident his boys will deliver.

Dazzler Clark in Bid for Title

Clark Makes Title Mat Bid

I MET DAZZLER CLARK, Scotch heavyweight, who meets Yvon Robert in a world's heavyweight championship wrestling bout at the Garden on Wednesday night under the direction of Paul Bowser. Clark has been preparing for a meeting with the Frenchman for a month and looked as if he is in perfect physical condition.

I asked Clark what his battle plan was for his tussle with Robert.

"Speed is my chief asset," said Clark. "I intend to set the fastest pace of any man who has ever opposed the champion. I shall carry Robert along at such a terrific clip that he won't be able to stand up after 20 minutes.

"Robert, other than for some minor bouts, has been inactive for a year. He will wish to favor his injured leg as much as possible, and will not know how he will be able to go if it should develop into a long match.

"I won't permit the Frenchman to coast along easily. I shall keep the pressure on him and force him to do the things he does not wish to do.

"In addition to my speed I believe I am a better wrestler than Robert. I have had more mat experience than the champion and have mastered a greater variety of holds.

"I am fortunate to be the first top flight heavyweight to meet Robert since his return to the ring. I have prepared myself carefully for this match, and will leave the ring champion.

"As title holder, I'll give every challenger a shot at my crown. I don't think I would have any difficulty defeating Steve Casey, Danno O'Mahony, Jim Londos or Everett Marshall."

Clark, unlike most talkative athletes, possesses plenty of ability. It is easy to understand why he believes he can win from Robert.

There is much interest in the title bout. I look for a near capacity crowd in the Garden when Robert and Clark whirl into action.

Niagara 17, Friars 6

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 8 (AP) — Niagara University scored its sixth triumph in seven football games this season when it defeated Providence College 17 to 6 here.

Tech Captures Dinghy Title

Skippers of the M. I. T. Nautical Association rule the college yachting roost today as the result of their victory over 18 other colleges in the largest dinghy regatta ever held in this county, raced over the triangular course on the basin.

Tech's skippers, with Runyon Colie winning five firsts and a second in the six race series, totalled 89 points to win a leg on the Boston Dinghy Club Challenge Trophy.

The final point standing was: M. I. T., 89; second, Brown, 74; third, Cornell, 72; fourth, Harvard, 67½; fifth, Tufts, 64½; sixth, Trinity, 59; seventh, McGill, 51; eighth, Haverford, 40.

In the consolation series Boston College surprised by beating out Yale and Princeton Yacht Clubs. Northeastern was the winner in this division.

The point standing: N. U., 56; second, B. C., 52; third, Yale, 48; fourth, Penn, 46; fifth, R. I. State, 44; sixth, Dartmouth, 42; seventh, Holy Cross, 38; eighth, Dartmouth, 36; ninth, W. P. I., 35; tenth, Georgetown, 32; eleventh, Amherst, 26.

Bruins Drill at Garden

Back from Montreal, where they opened their National Hockey League season with a 4-2 victory over Maroons Saturday, the Bruins held their first Boston practice of the season this morning at the Garden.

All hands were in good shape except Bill Cowley, who had three stitches taken over his eye, but he will be ready for play Saturday.

Eddie Shore, long the sparkplug of the team, said his back injury had healed completely and looks forward to a big season. Eddie is starting his 14th season with the club.

"This is a better team than we had a year ago," piped up Manager Art Ross," and that was no slouch."

Bonnies Win, 22-0

OLEAN, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP) — Halfback Walter Carew tallied three touchdowns in one period here as St. Bonaventure's football team repulsed Mt. St. Mary's from Emmittsburg, Md., 22 to 0.

All-America Tackles Puerile Against Crimson

By JOE CASHMAN

Harvard's showing in defeat against Army was a far greater tribute to the coaching genius of Richard Cresson Harlow than was the Crimson's one-sided victory over Princeton the week before.

You might have argued down in the Tiger Town that the amazing smoothness, bewildering deception and uncanny intuition of the Crimson was due more to the football ability and sense of the players than to any magic taught them by the bald ornithologist on the bench.

But you know better as you watched the Harvards against the Soldiers in the Stadium.

For there you saw the Crimson reduced almost to the jayvee level in material at the majority of posts and yet flash the famed Harlow hocus-pocus as cleverly and brilliantly as ever did the first stringers.

TOLL, THEN ISBELL

You saw Cambridge players who never previously had been in a major game for more than two or three minutes step in cold and look like All-Americas by the way they out-witted and deceived former college stars in the Army ranks.

In short, you discovered that with third-stringers, the Harvard eleven was still as well drilled and as technically perfect in every respect as any team you had ever glimpsed.

So, realizing that while a college squad might have a dozen exceptional performers, none ever had three dozen, you readily admitted the only possible answer was that this Harlow guy is truly a miracle man.

There's no doubt about it.

The [illegible] stuff can't [illegible] plays off as successfully on a blackboard as third-string Harlow pupils can put them on against foes supposed to be hep to all tricks.

One Crimson [illegible], after another came in there and [illegible] some of the smartest forwards in the country.

They did such a job on Charlie Toll of Princeton that the critics are still making apologies for hailing the Tiger captain an All-America tackle.

Captain Jim Isbell, Army's great tackle, doesn't yet know anything that happened on Harvard's touchdown march through the Soldiers.

As for the Harvard backs, they repeatedly mystify even their own coaches, so advanced are they in the art of camouflage.

MATERIAL INFERIOR

They feint passes, fake kicks and pretend possession of the pigskin so artistic that the opposition wonders whether it's in a football game or attending a spiritualistic seance.

Winning or losing, any eleven Harlow-yards on the field any afternoon constitute the most entertaining team in the East to watch.

That the Crimson doesn't win more often is due entirely to the material, which is inferior both numerically and physically to that of the majority of colleges on its schedule.

The makeshift Harvard outfit of Saturday last clearly deserved to triumph. If all the first-stringers had been available, Army probably would have suffered its first defeat ever at the Stadium.

But that game is now water under the dam and the Harlow-yards have put it out of their minds as they look to the future.

WATCH OUT, YALE

All they see, of course, is the game with Yale a week from next Saturday.

There's a date this weekend with Davidson, but that's just a breather.

Everything and everybody from now on will be pointed toward Yale, the game that will stamp success or failure on the Crimson campaign.

Undefeated and some three touchdowns stronger than Harvard, judging from comparative scores against Dartmouth, the Elis would seem to enjoy a marked edge.

However, let Struck, MacDonald, Harding, Green and the other first string cripples be in top shape for the tilt and Richard Cresson Harlow will be the best shortend bet of the year.

PITT'S SOUCHAK 'ALL END'

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Super Star Against 'Irish'; Zitrides to Fare

By LEWIS BURTON

We give you today Frank Souchak, Pittsburgh end, as a blame good nominee for All-United States consideration.

Hurried reports from the South Bend, Ind., battlefront state that against Notre Dame this big right wing, verging on super-stardom, turned in another gigantic performance.

Annually at this time football observers become conscious of a striking phenomenon. Players who had been impressive for their general seaworthiness in October suddenly swell into the gridiron's titans. Souchak belongs in that class.

A regular two years ago, Souchak took a sabbatical last season. He came back this year and displaced Fabian Hoffman, Pitt's Rose Bowl end.

With two possible exceptions, our scout has it, he was the outstanding Pitt lineman in every game this year. In the process he has been outshining his more celebrated team-mate, Bill Daddio, who ran afoul of injuries.

ZITRIDES—BLOCKER

We hesitate to add that "he can't miss." By this time it is well established that there are a few dozen players who cannot conceivably be omitted from the eleven (only eleven) places on the "All" team.

But there are a few important games left to go on every schedule, and the stretch run will straighten things out, or should.

Another unheralded player who deserves commendation today is Gregory Zitrides, stocky right guard on the undefeated Dartmouth team. Zitrides blossomed out against Princeton.

He was a great blocker, leading the ball-carrier off both sides and largely responsible for the Green's 359 yards gained in rushing. Defensively his performance kept pace.

The old guard continued at top speed. They included Backs Clint Frank, Yale; Sid Luckman, Columbia; Marshal Goldberg, Pitt, and Bill Osmanski, Holy Cross; Center, Alex Wojciechowicz, Fordham; tackles, Al Babartsky, Fordham; Al Kevorkian, Harvard, and Ed Franco, Fordham; end, Jack Daly, Manhattan.

Frank was at his best against Brown. His three touchdowns were incidental to his all-around finesse. Luckman had signal-calling added to his responsibilities for Columbia and gave what Lou Little considered a "marvelous" performance.

He completed 13 to 29 passed for 135 yards, batting below .500 for the first time this year because of five inglorious fumbles by team-mates.

LAFAYETTE AT PEAK

Fordham's Wojciechowicz continued terrific. Aside from knocking off 50 or 60 per cent of the tackles, he recovered a touched punt, paving the way for the first touchdown against Purdue, he intercepted a forward pass at the 5-yard-line, and at a critical point tossed a boilermaker back for a 14 yard loss.

Seven eastern teams survived Saturday's wreckage to remain undefeated. All of them will be favorites this week, especially Fordham, which has a day off.

Temple, three times tied, finally went down before Michigan State, whose only setback this year came at the hands of Manhattan, an eastern eleven.

Lafayette is the only team in the section that is both undefeated and untied. It was scored upon by Rutgers on Saturday, the first time this season. The deadlocked but undefeated are Dartmouth, Yale, Fordham, Pittsburgh, Holy Cross and Villanova.

PITT 13, NEBRASKA 0

In the country's only meeting of undefeated teams, Nebraska will play at Pittsburgh on Saturday. The Panthers appear able to adjust their gait for any competition.

The three touchdown spree against Notre Dame in the fourth quarter lent substance to the belief, said to originate with Dr. Jock Sutherland, that Pitt is lazy and plays only as well as it must.

My selections for next Saturday's Eastern football games, giving scores as a gauge of the probable difference between teams, are as follows:

Notre Dame 13, Army 7.
Yale 20, Princeton 6.
Pittsburgh 13, Nebraska 0.
Dartmouth 21, Cornell 13.
Lafayette 7, W. and J. 0.
Columbia 20, Syracuse 7.
Kentucky 13, Boston College 0.
Manhattan 7, N. Carolina S. 0.
Georgetown 14, N. Y. U. 7.
Harvard 20, Davidson 0.
Penn State 13, Maryland 0.
Michigan 14, Pennsylvania 0.
Ohio University 6, Rutgers 0.
Holy Cross 20, Brown 0.

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.——Psalms, I., 1.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. John W. Brush, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Waterville, Me. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. C. P. Mills of Riverside, Conn.)

The Editor Says:

GOVERNOR HURLEY, more than any of his predecessors, is putting meaning into the Massachusetts parole laws.

By returning to State Prison an Onset man who admitted he tried to smash the stove in his 90-year-old grandmother's home, Mr. Hurley once more serves notice on all freed prisoners that no misconduct on their part will be tolerated.

Public opinion is strongly behind the Governor in his determination to make former convicts behave. The parole system, due to official laxity and political meddling, had become too much like a merry-go-round upon which criminals were riding from one offense to another.

Actually, Mr. Hurley is the parole system's best friend. His severity is extending its life. Had he permitted the evils to pass unnoticed, the Legislature undoubtedly would have made it impossible to turn loose any prisoner.

DISARM MURDERERS

—was the excellent advice of Austin H. MacCormick, New York Commissioner of Correction, to the members of Boston's Twentieth Century Club.

"If we really want to do something about murder, why not regulate the sale of firearms?" he asked. "How much longer are we going to permit lobbies to balk restrictive legislation?"

New England ought to think a great deal about that important subject. In Maine, almost anyone who can sign his name is able to obtain a license to tote a gun. In Massachusetts, the Legislature has muzzled police officials so effectively that they are legally stripped of the power to get vital information from persons seeking permission to carry revolvers. The situation is hardly better in other States.

When we wake up to the fact that a killer is as dangerous as his gun, we may be inclined to write common sense into our firearms laws. The awakening can't come too quickly.

NO TEACHERS' OATH

—was taken by any of the flock of instructors at a Newbury street "Progressive Labor School," the director, who is quoted as calling himself a Communist, told the legislative commission investigating "isms" in this State.

His excuse was that the State Department of Education failed to notify the school's staff that this was expected of them. Fortunately, it is not too late. They ought to receive the belated notification TODAY.

OLD-FASHIONED GIRLS

—will be encouraged by the results of a "Dream Girl" poll conducted at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The future scientists express a definite preference for frank, independent and home-loving young women.

The poll reveals that some "Tech" students enjoy dates with girls who drink and smoke to excess and think more about ballrooms than kitchens, but that those they expect to marry are quite like "mother used to be."

This is not surprising. Frivolity has always amused youth. Yet, when a trip to the altar is being considered, the good cook is ever the sure bet.

Unlike automobile and hat models, wife styles do not change.

MASSACHUSETTS LEADS

—in the production of shoes. That is the good news the United States Commerce Department reports. The 6,822,300 pairs we manufactured during September exceeded the number made in any other State.

Nevertheless, we can't afford to become too self-satisfied. For the truth is that our production is declining. In September, we really turned out 1,287,700 FEWER pairs than we did in August.

And, if Secretary Hull's proposed "reciprocal" trade treaty with Czechoslovakia is adopted, we may expect to manufacture even less.

Clearly we cannot afford to rest on our laurels. We must keep what we have and fight for more. The big job just now is to see that Czechoslovakia's low-priced shoes stay where they belong—in Czechoslovakia.

DEATH MONTHS

—are the names Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin gives to November and December. He explains that more people are killed on Massachusetts highways during this period than in any other season of the year. He says:

"The only hope of changing this horrible condition lies in a willingness on the part of drivers to reduce speed, especially on wet streets, and not to drive after drinking liquor. This should not be too much to ask."

It certainly ought not to be. No man's time is so valuable that he can run the risk of sending another man to the cemetery in order to reach a destination quickly.

Tied Up

By Nelson Harding

National recovery is held back by PARALYZING TAXES as securely as a ship tied to a dock.

Congress will start its special session with full knowledge of its obligation to reduce taxes which PREVENT RECOVERY.

The government ought to be pushing business ahead, not HOLDING IT BACK.

Listen, World!

By
Elsie Robinson

AMERICANS shame! Everywhere, highways of death . . . stained with blood . . . clamorous with shrieks of agony . . . . . . roaring with the murderous speed which hurls itself ceaselessly onward, unheeding.

IF YOU HAD THE POWER, WHAT WOULD YOU DO ABOUT IT?

Here's Young America's answer to that tragic, urgent question. First, from Arthur Williams, hospital attendant in Boston, comes a suggestion which should cure speed mania if anything on earth can do so.

"Bring the speed demon into the hospital . . . let him see the ghastly horror for which he is responsible!

"Come—we are ready—I am in my uniform at the wheel of the operating table. A young girl lies hideously broken before us. Bring in the man who did this . . . force him to watch!

"See the severed flesh and bone fall in shreds! Smell the gagging ether and iodine! Hear the gasping breath!

"What? Is our brave speed demon going white . . . is the sweat standing out in beads on his greenish flesh . . . is he sickening . . . knees sagging . . . everything turning black?

"So you want to go, do you? No going for you! Prop him up . . . bind him . . . make him watch it through to its awful end!

"You did this! Now you'll take it and like it.

"This is my cure for speedists.

"Arthur Williams, 28,
"West Concord street, Boston."

($10 prize winner.)

And a thorough one, Arthur—which I wager would be as efficacious as any form of punishment, if we'd enforce it.

Caroline Mammoliti of New York City believes there "oughta be a law," several of them, and the same in all states. As follows:

"A—All new cars must be inspected and approved as mechanically perfect before they can be registered.

"B—Similar inspection must take place at stated intervals after registration.

"C—Used cars must also have such approval before sale.

"D—No licenses granted until applicants have passed SEVERE tests of skill, knowledge of laws and a thorough medical examination stressing eyesight, hearing and nervous reactions.

"E—Absolute revocation of license for any legal violation or physical defect occurring after grant of the same.

"F—State and local police be required to openly patrol the highways instead of hiding.

"Caroline Mammoliti, 16,
"East 124 street, New York City."

($10 prize winner.)

Which is pretty smart, says I, for a little 16-year-old.

And last, but no means least, comes Josephine Batton of Atlanta, Ga., with one of the most unique suggestions received.

"Laws have failed," says Josephine. "Regular punishments seem futile. But there is one thing which will pierce the toughest hide and that is—RIDICULE.

"When people have been convicted of grave traffic violation, why not enforce the wearing of big, easily read placards like the following—the number of days to be determined by the seriousness of the offense:

"'I AM A DRIVING DUNCE. I'M THE ONE WHO THOUGHT ALCOHOL AND GASOLINE WOULD MIX . . . I'M A HIGHWAY HOG! I'M A POTENTIAL PEDESTRIAN CRIPPLER. I HAVE NO REGARD FOR ANYONE'S DRIVING RIGHTS BUT MY OWN.' ETC.

"If a hit and run driver had to wear such a badge wherever he went—AND BE PUNISHED HEAVILY IF HE LEFT IT OFF—he'd shrivel with shame. Strike at the ego and you have even the worst of us.

"Josephine B. Batton, 24,
"Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga."

($5 prize winner.)

Surpass that, if you can, as a speed reducer!

RULES

1—The writer of a letter in competition for one of the three weekly prizes—two of $10 each and one of $5—must be under 30 years of age.

2—The letter must be upon some subject of importance to American youth.

3—The letter must not exceed 300 words in length.

4—The writer must give his or her age and full name and address, and the name of each writer awarded a prize will be published.

5—To be eligible for one of the prizes awarded each Monday a letter must bear postmark not later than noon of the preceding Saturday.

6—Miss Elsie Robinson is to be sole judge of the merits of letters submitted in the contest.

TABLOID PHILOSOPHY

Ten tabloid commandments for Matrimony. Mind Your Own Business. Be a Good Sport. Be Polite. Be Loyal. Be Patient. Be Cheerful. Be Fair. Be Appreciative. Be Well-groomed. Be QUIET. And the greatest of these is "Mind Your Own Business!"

Marriage would be less of a gamble if the bride could only realize it is not a reformatory, and that she married the man in order to make him happy—not to make him OVER.

A woman is not a real philosopher until she can enjoy the luxury of just being in love, without stopping to wonder how it will turn out.

A fanatic is a man who has mistaken his liver for his conscience, his dyspepsia for his religion, and his prejudices for his faith.

There is such an eternal glamour about a wedding ring, that even the woman who pawns hers to pay her husband's fine for wife-beating sheds a tender tear over it!

No man is the angel his mother thinks him, the fool his father thinks him, the prize-winner his sweetheart thinks him—or even the fascinating devil he thinks himself.

The girl who can balance herself on the very fine line between piquing a man's jealousy and puncturing his faith, has found the perfect "combination" for holding his love as long as she cares to.

A man's idea of "tact" is to dry a woman's tears by telling her that her nose is getting red.

Human Side of the News

By
Edwin C. Hill

THROUGHOUT the world, the horse is on the way back. Horse prices are rising in France, Germany, Italy and Japan. The power age must pay its way. As gasoline prices rise, the old hay-burner again becomes a popular model.

That is particularly true in France. Over there they had made quite a start in motorized agricultural machinery. When hard times came, old Dobbin plodded back with them. Low farm produce prices just won't support a tractor in the style to which it has been accustomed.

Nobody had to draw a diagram to make thrifty French farmers see that. Percheron foals, running by their mothers' sides, are bringing as high as $150.

All through the West and the Middle West there is a brisk new demand for horses and its explanation lights up sharply differences between this country and the rest of the world. There is a reminder here that, in spite of Washington, Wall Street, the Dust Bowl, the $35,000,000,000 debt and all our other goblins and ogres, we still jog along far above the mere subsistence level.

This foreign horse demand is impelled by subsistence and survival demands—ours, by play. Rodeos, dude ranches and polo are hiking horse prices in this country. There are 125 major rodeos in the country and many hundreds of smaller outfits.

The slump in horse-breeding of the last few years had caused a shortage of horses. Now they are getting fancy prices for any tough cayuse which has the makings of a rodeo star.

There's an odd twist here, in the overing of equine and human values. Nice, [illegible]able, manageable horses are herded off to war, possibly to get themselves blown up—quite certainly, if a real war starts. Outlaw bronchos—the meaner and more ornery they are, the better—get nice safe jobs at home, with plenty of oats and knee-deep bedding.

The rodeo managements have been having trouble getting thoroughly unregenerate desperado horses that can really buck and pitch. A completely abandoned character brings big money, and they are beginning to breed the meaner strains. This is an instance where virtue is punished and vice is rewarded.

Many of the wildest and fiercest of the rodeo horses were once nice, patient, plodding animals, as mild and obedient as a subway strap-hanger. Then they got a shot of loco weed, or nibbled a Jimson bush or something like that, went haywire and became rodeo stars.

For polo, the little cow ponies are being crossed with thoroughbred strains. The agile little mustangs are ideal for polo, but they need a bit of speed and streamlining. Polo is shoving ahead all around the country, prices are going up and western breeders are now beginning to develop the above cross-breed.

Some dude ranches are producing the same blend, but for the most part they are sticking to the old models. Rodeo scouts are out around the country, just like the baseball scouts, looking for horses uniquely gifted in deviltry. Such a horse is pretty sure to be upped to stardom.

Christmas toys are featuring cowboys and horses this year. There is nothing casual or unpremediated about the doings of the American Toy Managers' Association. They scout the child world pretty thoroughly before deciding on the sason's output. This year, they find the kids go for cowboys and G-men. Tin soldiers are away down in the list—only about one per cent of the toys being in the military line.

To the great American boy there is romance in a cayuse, chaps, spurs, quirt and saddle with Mexican trappings. It will catch any of us ahead of a tank. Even imaginative youngsters don't seem to get much of a thrill out of jockeying a tank through gunfire.

New York Day by Day

By
O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.

DIARY: Abroad to the florist's to see the new O. O. McIntyre dahlia, Tyrian rose in color and of the type called "semicactus." Then to Ben Ali Haggin's studio to leave a picture of his dog Nimble, which he gave me. And pirouting around the new Sulka shop.

Home and C. B. Driscoll came along, a fellow of pleasant ease, desiring nothing and at peace with himself.

Came a souvenir sheaf of the coronation editions of London gazettes from Basil Woon. Also bids to Dot and Deke Aylesworth's dance for Dorothy, and a Constance Collier tea.

With my wife and cousin to dinner at a public feasting on a haunch of venison served with a thin goblet of hippocras. And everybody so washen, bedecked and gay it was difficult to believe there is so much grief and woe in the tumbling world.

The high spot of Chinatown's gastronomy is a nameless cellar place in Pell street. It makes no concessions to usual courtesies—no greeting at the door, none of the smiling unctions nor menus. One may wait for a half hour before a waiter comes, but finally a sleepy-eyed Celestial will shuffle out of nowhere with what he thinks you should eat and it's always a lip-smacking spread.

The prices are low and the place was discovered for the uptown cognoscenti by Anna May Wong.

There's no sight-seeing tingle for me like visiting a Chinese quarter. And a Chinese restaurant is the only place I ever found where tea is not only tasty, but highly refreshing.

One of the traveling treats I have saved up against more sedate years was a voyage to China, especially to see Shanghai and Peiping.

But I waited too long, I fear.

The old Morning Telegraph newspaper shop, now the site of Jack Dempsey's restaurant, was long the town's most picturesque plant. It was an abandoned car barn patched up and made over like some derelict structure in a shantytown.

One reached the various departments up rickety stairs and the editorial room was amusing and mellow. Desks of reporters and editors were often old boxes with smaller boxes as chairs. The walls were scrofulous with tattered burlesque and circus posters.

Almost anyone with experience could land a job there. There were few rules. Many drank openly from whiskey bottles in drawers and lockers. And everybody loved the shack and his job.

In those days there was the contrasting la-de-dah of the Evening Post that was on Vesey street. Important editors wore frock coats and sat at glass-topped desks enclosed with shiny brass railings. The aisleways were carpeted and here and there was a potted plant. But it turned out some celebrated journalists, including the crack dramatic critic, John Anderson, Harold Littlefield and Dudley Nichols.

During one of my jobless periods I visited, hat in hand, both the Telegraph and Post in quest of berth. Bill Lewis offered to take me on after only a few questions for $22 a week, but I got no further than the office boy at the Post.

From a magazine story: "No one heeded him until he began to sing and then they swarmed about him like flies in molasses. Men sought his bow, women his smile."

Vocal boy makes good.

March of Events

By
Benjamin DeCasseres

HOW to commit murder and get away with it is the subject of a remarkable pamphlet just issued by the Bi-Centennial Committee of the University of Pennsylvania.

To convict a murderer nowadays is, as a district attorney says in this pamphlet, "like an ox-cart trying to overtake a high-powered car."

Here is an almost unbelievable instance of how technicalities and the sogginess of juries promote crime in America, as described in the pamphlet:

In a Western State two men bound, tortured, robbed and finally burnt to death a man living alone on a ranch. They got 25 cents.

The jury brought in a verdict of second degree.

The two friends appealed. Their convictions were reversed because the Superior Court held that they should have been tried for first-degree murder or nothing.

The murderers were then freed.

There are two things you will find every day now in your newspaper without fail—the weather forecast and the daily grist of executions in Soviet Russia, "The Workers' Paradise."

The Reds, Pinks and Yellows picket foreign legations in protest against the murder of civilians in China, the imprisonment of Communists in Germany and the arrest of anti-Fascists in Italy, but I have not heard of the Reds, Pinks and Yellows picketing the Russian Embassy in Washington (or anywhere else) protesting against the wholesale slaughter of human beings in Russia.

The most astonishing news that has come out of South America in a long time is that Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" have been removed from all the public libraries and schools in the state of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, on the grounds that the book is "subversive" and "Communistic"!

Tom Sawyer and his friend, Huck Finn, were rampant and "rugged individualists," as far removed from Communistic and Fascist ideals as boyhood is from senility.

Is Brazil deliberately trying to sink to the "cultural" stupidities of Hitlerism?
